OPPORTUNITY TO VOTE ON WATER AND SEWER BONDS IN JANUARY

ORDINANCE TO BE INTRODUCED AT NEXT MEETING OF COUNCIL

PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS ARE TO BE PREPARED SOON

CONTRACT IS SIGNED WITH ATLANTA COMPANY TO START WORK AT ONCE AND RECEIVE PAY AFTER BONDS ARE SOLD.

If the present plans of the ordinance committee of the city council are successfully carried through, the people of New Smyrna will be given a chance to vote on the proposition of issuing bonds for systems of waterworks and sewers some time in January.

This is the earliest date an election on the matter of giving the city these needed municipal improvements can be called, and the new city council is endeavoring to carry out its promise to give the citizens an opportunity to express themselves on this question as soon as possible.

According to the provisions of the city charter such a bond ordinance must be passed through the city council on three readings, the same as other city ordinances, and this action, passing one reading at each regular monthly meeting, will take three months time. Following this the ordinance as passed must be advertised for 30 days before the special election can be held. The three full months time would not be required for the passage of the ordinance by the city council, however, by taking advantage of another provision, which permits the passage of ordinances on any reading at any meeting when the full council is present.

Another provision in the city charter prevents the calling of a bonding election within 60 days before or 60 days after any general election, and this is taken to mean that the special bonding election can not be called within 60 days before or 60 days after the general election November 3, which provision will necessarily set the proposed special election over until January.

The plans of the ordinance committee are to have the ordinance calling for the special election to vote on bonds for waterworks and sewer systems introduced and given its first reading at the next regular meeting of the council, which will be the first Tuesday in September, and have the ordinance take its regular course, being given its second reading at the October meeting and its third reading and passage at the November meeting.

To hurry the installation of waterworks and sewers in New Smyrna, the city council has already signed a contract with the J. B. McCrary company of Atlanta to prepare plans and specifications for both systems complete, and this work will be started within a few days. The McCrary company is now engineering construction work in a number of Florida cities and towns and the company's engineers will be in New Smyrna to begin the preliminary surveys in a short time.

Geo. C. Pierce, representing the McCrary company, appeared before the council at the adjourned meeting last week Thursday night with a proposition to make two complete sets of plans and specifications for the waterworks and sewers, one set taking in the needs of the city at the present time and the other set being a continuation of the first, preparing for the growth of the city and increase in population.

The proposition made by the engineer and accepted by the council is that the McCrary company shall be paid $450 for this work, this sum to be paid when the bonds for these improvements are voted and sold. If the bonds fail to carry, the McCrary company gets nothing for the work of preparing the plans and specifications, which are to be returned to the engineers.

The McCrary company also makes a proposition to supervise the work of installing the waterworks and

MATTER OF JOINING CITRUS EXCHANGE DISCUSSED HERE

SECOND MEETING OF GROWERS OF THIS VICINITY WILL BE HELD HERE NEXT MONDAY AFTERNOON.

That there is a sentiment favorable to the forming of a branch of the Florida Citrus Exchange in this city was shown by expressions from a number of growers who gathered in Dohn's hall last Monday afternoon to meet Edward Burr, a representative of the Exchange and talk the proposition over with him.

Mr. Burr came here for the purpose of talking the matter over with the growers of this vicinity and explaining to them what the Exchange is doing in the way of handling fruit and protecting the growers and shippers, and ascertaining the sentiment of the citrus fruit men in New Smyrna and this vicinity.

Unfavorable weather conditions prevented a number of the growers who had been notified of the gathering from attending the meeting, but about 15 were present and the matter was pretty thoroughly talked over and discussed. Mr. Burr explained what the Exchange has done in other sections of the state and told of the advantages of having the fruit handled, from the picking to the shipping, by experienced men and the advantages of the selling department of the Exchange.

The effort to organize a branch of the Exchange was not made at the meeting Monday afternoon, but Mr. Burr is pleased with the reception given him by the growers here and says the local association will surely be organized. He will return to New Smyrna today and will visit a number of the growers in this vicinity. Another meeting for the purpose of forming a local association will be held in Dohn's hall next Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Every citrus fruit grower is invited to attend this meeting and take part in the discussions and deliberations.

Mr. Burr believes the sentiment here is strong enough to insure that a packing house will be built, and he estimates that a house to properly take care of the business at this place should cost in the neighborhood of $15,000.

LOCAL CARPENTERS' UNION CHOOSES NEW OFFICERS.

At the regular meeting of New Smyrna union, No. 1064, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, held in Pellet's hall last Friday night, the following officers were elected to serve the organization for the ensuing year:

President—T. B. Chilton.
Vice President—C. E. Wilcox.
Recording Secretary—H. B. Nordman.

Financial Secretary—O. G. Sage.
Treasurer—B. A. Lopez.
Warden—Arthur Miers.
Trustees—J. A. Molder, Clarence Lopez, C. W. Murray.

The regular meetings of the local union are held the first and third Fridays of each month in Pellet's hall.

SENTIMENT FOR CHANGING TO EASTERN TIME IS GAINING

FIREMEN'S DAY AT PAVILION IS NEXT THURSDAY, JULY 30

ENTERTAINING FEATURES FOR BOTH AFTERNOON AND EVENING HAVE BEEN ARRANGED BY THE FIREMEN.

Because of lack of time to make the necessary preparations, the special day for the New Smyrna fire department at the new Dougherty pavilion at the beach was postponed from yesterday to next week Thursday, when the local fire department will have entire charge of the big pavilion during the afternoon and evening, the entire proceeds to be retained by the fire department.

A number of especially attractive features of entertainment have been arranged by the firemen for the visitors to the pavilion that day, in addition to the regular attractions of surf bathing and skating during the afternoon and dancing in the evening, and cold drinks and lunches will be served at all times during the day.

One of the features of the affair will be the crowning of a fire queen at 9 o'clock Thursday evening, the queen to be selected by a voting contest among those who go to the pavilion. Nominations for this honor are now being made and the names of the contestants will be known by the first of next week and will be posted in the office of Chief F. A. Newell of the fire department.

Tickets to record the votes have been provided by the firemen and one vote will be given with every cent spent at the pavilion next Thursday. Round trip coupon tickets for fare to and from the pavilion, including admission to the pavilion, have also been provided and will be sold for 50 cents each, each ticket entitling the purchaser to 50 votes for fire queen. These tickets will be accepted by the drivers of automobiles and bus running to and from the beach, one coupon being good for the ride to the beach and the other for returning.

The privileges of the pavilion are donated to the firemen by Mr. Dougherty in return for the assistance given him by the department in setting the piling for his bathing life lines.

CAN'T USE SPECIAL FUND FOR DREDGING THE RIVER FRONT

COUNCIL KILLS PROPOSITION TO USE $2,000 FROM THE FIRE AND WATER FUND FOR THIS PURPOSE.

By an action of the city council at the meeting last week, the proposition of taking $2,000 from the fire and water fund to have the river front dredged out, was indefinitely laid on the table, and this work will not be paid for with money from the fire and water fund.

Because there was no opportunity to get the necessary money to pay for this work from the general funds provided for the expenses of the city during this year, the old council at a meeting held in June voted to take $2,000 from the special fire and water fund and appropriate it for this purpose.

A proposition from the captain of the big dredge now working in the river south of New Smyrna to bring the dredge here and dig a channel 45 feet wide and five feet deep along the seawall from the bridge leading to the city dock south to the Marshall property, was submitted to the council at the meeting last week, and considered by that body. Although not opposed to the dredging and conceding that it is an improvement much needed, the members of the council considered they have a right to take the money from the special fund to pay for this work, and the proposition was killed.

CITY TREASURER ORDERED TO PAY ALL THE CITY WARRANTS

COUNCIL TAKES STEP TO CLEAR UP FINANCIAL TANGLE BY KILLING THE "RESOLUTION OF ECONOMY."

The troublesome "resolution of economy," passed by the old city council, which ordered the city treasurer to pay only such warrants as were issued by that council, and which caused the mandamus proceeding of the State bank against the city treasurer, has been killed by the new city council, which adopted, at the adjourned meeting of that body held last Thursday night, a resolution ordering the city treasurer to pay all city warrants in the order in which they are registered.

Just what effect this will have on the present status of the mandamus proceeding, which has been carried up on appeal from the circuit court to the state supreme court, is not known, but it is understood the court proceeding will be dropped. The present city council's endeavoring to untangle the condition into which the "resolution of economy" plunged the city's financial affairs, and probably will not finance the city treasurer in any further court proceedings.

Following the action taken by the old council in ordering the treasurer to pay only warrants issued by that council, the State bank took the matter into the circuit court on a mandamus proceeding to compel the treasurer to pay warrants cashed and held by the bank, and the court ordered that these warrants be paid in the order in which they were registered. The city council permitted the treasurer to retain an attorney to represent him in the court proceeding and allowed him a sum not to exceed $25 for attorney's fees. An appeal was taken by the treasurer to the supreme court although, it is said, no action was taken by the council authorizing him to appeal the case or providing funds to finance such an appeal.

TITUSVILLE MEMBERS OF WOODMEN AT UNVEILING.

Members of company K, 30th regiment, uniform rank of Indian River camp, No. 141, Titusville, assisted the members of Smyrna camp, No. 149, Woodmen of the World, at the unveiling of the monument to Sovereign N. M. Duncan at the Hawks Park cemetery last Sunday afternoon. The memorial address was delivered by Sovereign John R. Walker of Titusville.

The unveiling ceremonies were witnessed by a large number of the members of the order and their friends. Music for the occasion was furnished by the Woodmen choir and a pleasing feature of the program was a recitation by Miss Gwendolyn Roach.

After the unveiling ceremonies the uniform rank from Titusville gave an exhibition drill in the camp quarters of Smyrna camp.

and pleasure for all concerned, and would prove very beneficial, especially to the people who spend most of their time confined in offices and factories.

"It is also pointed out that the change would save a great deal of inconvenience in travel and rapid correspondence. At present a traveler from Washington or some other city using the eastern standard time and arrive here using another."

"While I have not received any communication from Miami concerning this matter," said Mr. Race, "I am very much in favor of the movement and feel satisfied that the board of trade will lead its support. I think the Miami body is to be highly commended for this action, and it is my opinion that Jacksonville ought to co-operate with them."

NORTHERN COMPANY IS READY TO FINANCE THE PROPOSITION

LAKE HELEN CIVIC LEAGUE IS NOW LEARNING SENTIMENT IN OTHER CITIES AND TOWNS ALONG ROUTE.

That the efforts started some time ago by the residents of Lake Helen for an interurban electric railroad between New Smyrna and the St. Johns river, to pass through Lake Helen, bid fair to be successful and that the line will eventually extend on through to the west coast at Tampa, is the word brought to this city Wednesday by S. E. Carmichael of Lake Helen, who was delegated by the Civic league of Lake Helen to visit New Smyrna and the other cities and towns along the line of the proposed road and ascertain the sentiment of the people.

The movement for this interurban road was started several months ago by the offer of a wealthy winter resident of Lake Helen to give $20,000 toward such a project and other offers from residents and winter visitors in Lake Helen soon brought the offered amount up to about $40,000.

Following this a movement was started to get the proper financial backing for such a project, and an offer has now been made to the Civic league of Lake Helen by a big engineering and construction concern in the north to take up the matter and finance the building of the road.

Mr. Carmichael's visit to New Smyrna Wednesday was for the purpose of putting the proposition before the board of trade with a view to learning what the people here will do about the matter. From this city he went yesterday to Sanford and Orlando to investigate the sentiment in those cities on the matter of extending the road through from the St. Johns river to the west coast. Other cities and towns along the route of the proposed road will be visited by Mr. Carmichael, who will make his report to the Lake Helen Civic league and then to the company which proposes to finance the undertaking.

Two or three different routes to the west coast have been sketched out for the proposed road, each of which has its eastern terminus at New Smyrna, to give connection with the ocean through the inlet, the inland waterway and the Florida East Coast railroad. It is believed the people of New Smyrna will respond willingly and liberally to the proposition.

GOOD ROADS DELEGATE PASSES THROUGH CITY.

B. B. Tatum of Miami, a big real estate dealer and prominent citizen of the Magic City, passed through New Smyrna yesterday in his automobile enroute to Jacksonville to attend the annual convention of the Florida Good Roads association, which convenes in the metropolis today. Mr. Tatum was accompanied by his wife and two daughters, Misses Jane and Frances. On the way to Jacksonville Mr. Tatum is taking careful note of the condition of the roads traveled with the idea of making a report to the delegates to the convention of the condition of the highway the length of the East Coast. He will also ask for the good roads convention to be held in Miami next year. He believes that if the convention is held in Miami next year many of the delegates will make the trip down the East Coast in machines, which will result in much valuable boosting for a good, hard-surfaced highway the full length of the coast.

Clarence Griffin returned Monday to his home in Kissimmee after a visit with relatives in this city. He was accompanied home by Herbert Fuller, who will visit in Kissimmee.

Gossip of the Town

by the
Town Gossiper

The action of the city council last week in ordering the city treasurer to pay all city warrants in the order in which they are registered has had the effect of at least restoring enough confidence in the city's finances to permit the street committee to hire men to work on the streets. These men now have the assurance they will get their money some time, and that their warrants have a negotiable value.

Nobody denies the need of an efficient fire department in New Smyrna, but from the lack of interest in the department heretofore shown by the citizens the members of the department are easily led to believe the citizens don't care particularly whether the department is a good one, a mediocre one or a minus quantity. Your opportunity to help the fire department in at least a small way will be given next week Thursday, afternoon and evening. Keep this in mind.

"Views of the University of Florida," a new book issued by the state university as a part of the University Record, has been received by the News, and a perusal of it makes one wonder why any native young man of this state should have any desire to seek higher education at any institution other than our own state university. The University of Florida now ranks among the best of the educational institutions and its advantages are well set forth in the pamphlet just issued.

City Treasurer Silvers, I am told, has gone on a vacation, and it is rumored in "city hall" circles, his departure left the city in a peculiar position. It is stated that the day the city treasurer left the city a note due the Watrous Engine company as a payment on the new fire engine was presented for payment and the holder of the city's money could not be found to make the settlement. As a result the city officials had to take up a course of correspondence explanation with the Watrous people and endeavor to get them to hold up demand for payment of the note until the return of the treasurer. In the meantime payment on city warrants must await the return of the treasurer, and I understand the incident is to be pretty thoroughly discussed at the next meeting of the council.

It is really a pleasure to pick up a Miami paper and read about the things they are doing down in that wonderful little city in the way of boosting and building, and the way the city is forging ahead by leaps and bounds, and it makes a man want to rest his weary head when he thinks that New Smyrna was a prosperous village when there was nothing to mark the site of Miami but a bunch of sand dunes facing unpenetrated tangles of underbrush and woods. Miami has forged ahead because the people have worked together and boosted, they have looked for opportunities to better conditions and build up the town and have grasped these opportunities with energy when they found them, they have left no stone unturned to advertise the town and tell the people all over the country what they are doing and why Miami is a good town. The latest stunt pulled off in the city down the coast is to change the time from central to eastern time, and the whole city did it at one and the same time. All that was needed was to explain why the change should be made to benefit the people and the city, and the change came. This is not said to boost Miami, but merely to call attention to what can be done for any town that has the opportunities, when all factions pull together.

Mrs. W. C. Rowley, who before her marriage was Miss Nettie Pacatti, died suddenly at her home at Ponce Park Monday afternoon of heart trouble. The funeral was held at Daytona Wednesday.

Because there was no opportunity to get the necessary money to pay for this work from the general funds provided for the expenses of the city during this year, the old council at a meeting held in June voted to take $2,000 from the special fire and water fund and appropriate it for this purpose.

A proposition from the captain of the big dredge now working in the river south of New Smyrna to bring the dredge here and dig a channel 45 feet wide and five feet deep along the seawall from the bridge leading to the city dock south to the Marshall property, was submitted to the council at the meeting last week, and considered by that body. Although not opposed to the dredging and conceding that it is an improvement much needed, the members of the council considered they have a right to take the money from the special fund to pay for this work, and the proposition was killed.

MIAMI CITIZENS SET PACE BY TURNING CLOCKS AHEAD

AGITATION CONTINUES ALONG WHOLE EAST COAST AND CONVENTION OF DELEGATES MAY BE CALLED.

That the movement to change the time along the full length of the East Coast of Florida from central time to eastern time, is steadily spreading is indicated by the agitation of the matter in nearly all of the cities and towns along the coast.

The movement started in Miami and met with such popular approval that city has already adopted the change, and beginning at midnight last Saturday practically every clock and watch in the city of Miami, except the time of the Florida East Coast railroad was set ahead one hour and the city of Miami is now operating under eastern time. Practically every business house, the city offices all the churches, all professional men and citizens generally set their time ahead to midnight at 11 o'clock Saturday night and began this week an hour earlier.

The agitation has been taken up in railroad circles and it is believed the East Coast railroad will adopt eastern time for the operation of the trains. If this is done all cities and towns along the East Coast will fall into line immediately and the whole East Coast section will be an hour ahead of the present.

In Jacksonville the agitation has been taken up by the board of trade and the Rotary club with the idea of getting the unanimous consent of the business and professional men to adopt eastern time and have all railroads do the same.

The matter is also being agitated in St. Augustine with the idea of having that city take the same action just taken in Miami.

At present the agitation is directed toward calling a convention of delegates from all cities interested along the Atlantic coast from Key West to Savannah or Charleston for the purpose of conferring with the railroad officials and talking the matter over. It is probable such a "time convention," if called, will be held in Jacksonville, and New Smyrna will be asked to send representatives to the gathering.

Concerning the proposed change in time, The Jacksonville Metropolis in a recent issue says:

"If plans now in a formative stage materialize into a reality Jacksonville will awake an hour earlier each day and retire an hour earlier each night. According to the clock there will be no difference in the habits of the normal man, but the scheme has for its purpose the moving up of the hands to give Jacksonville and the East Coast of Florida what is known as eastern time."

"Relative to the proposal of the Miami Commercial club to call a convention in this city of all of the cities along the East Coast from Key West to Charleston, S. C., and the railroads, for the purpose of changing the time, from central to eastern standard, both H. B. Race, president of the board of trade, and F. C. Groover of the Rotary club, express themselves as heartily in favor of the proposed change, provided, of course, all the cities and railroads agree to recognize it."

"Mr. Race stated that in his opinion it would simplify matters greatly and in more ways than one. He calls attention to the fact that Jacksonville does more shipping, transportation and financial business with New York City than any other place in the country. He also points out the advantages of having the same time, which would avoid a great deal of confusion, and would, practically, save an hour each day."

"Both Mr. Race and Mr. Groover state that the advantage would also be felt in the matter of recreation

CITY TREASURER ORDERED TO PAY ALL THE CITY WARRANTS

COUNCIL TAKES STEP TO CLEAR UP FINANCIAL TANGLE BY KILLING THE "RESOLUTION OF ECONOMY."

The troublesome "resolution of economy," passed by the old city council, which ordered the city treasurer to pay only such warrants as were issued by that council, and which caused the mandamus proceeding of the State bank against the city treasurer, has been killed by the new city council, which adopted, at the adjourned meeting of that body held last Thursday night a resolution ordering the city treasurer to pay all city warrants in the order in which they are registered.

Just what effect this will have on the present status of the mandamus proceeding which has been carried up on appeal from the circuit court to the state supreme court is not known, but it is understood the court proceeding will be dropped. The present city council's endeavoring to untangle the condition into which the "resolution of economy" plunged the city's financial affairs and probably will not finance the city treasurer in any further court proceedings.

Following the action taken by the old council in ordering the treasurer to pay only warrants issued by that council, the State bank took the matter into the circuit court on a mandamus proceeding to compel the treasurer to pay warrants cashed and held by the bank, and the court ordered that these warrants be paid in the order in which they were registered. The city council permitted the treasurer to retain an attorney to represent him in the court proceeding and allowed him a sum not to exceed $25 for attorney's fees. An appeal was taken by the treasurer to the supreme court although, it is said, no action was taken by the council authorizing him to appeal the case or providing funds to finance such an appeal.

TITUSVILLE MEMBERS OF WOODMEN AT UNVEILING.

Members of company K, 30th regiment, uniform rank of Indian River camp, No. 141, Titusville, assisted the members of Smyrna camp, No. 149, Woodmen of the World, at the unveiling of the monument to Sovereign N. M. Duncan at the Hawks Park cemetery last Sunday afternoon. The memorial address was delivered by Sovereign John R. Walker of Titusville.

The unveiling ceremonies were witnessed by a large number of the members of the order and their friends. Music for the occasion was furnished by the Woodmen choir and a pleasing feature of the program was a recitation by Miss Gwendolyn Roach.

After the unveiling ceremonies the uniform rank from Titusville gave an exhibition drill in the camp quarters of Smyrna camp.

and pleasure for all concerned, and would prove very beneficial, especially to the people who spend most of their time confined in offices and factories.

"It is also pointed out that the change would save a great deal of inconvenience in travel and rapid correspondence. At present a traveler from Washington or some other city using the eastern standard time and arrive here using another."

"While I have not received any communication from Miami concerning this matter," said Mr. Race, "I am very much in favor of the movement and feel satisfied that the board of trade will lend its support. I think the Miami body is to be highly commended for this action, and it is my opinion that Jacksonville ought to co-operate with them."

NORTHERN COMPANY IS READY TO FINANCE THE PROPOSITION

LAKE HELEN CIVIC LEAGUE IS NOW LEARNING SENTIMENT IN OTHER CITIES AND TOWNS ALONG ROUTE.

That the efforts started some time ago by the residents of Lake Helen for an interurban electric railroad between New Smyrna and the St. Johns river, to pass through Lake Helen, bid fair to be successful and that the line will eventually extend on through to the west coast at Tampa, is the word brought to this city Wednesday by S. E. Carmichael of Lake Helen, who was delegated by the Civic league of Lake Helen to visit New Smyrna and the other cities and towns along the line of the proposed road and ascertain the sentiment of the people.

The movement for this interurban road was started several months ago by the offer of a wealthy winter resident of Lake Helen to give $20,000 toward such a project and other offers from residents and winter visitors in Lake Helen soon brought the offered amount up to about $40,000. Following this a movement was started to get the proper financial backing for such a project, and an offer has now been made to the Civic league of Lake Helen by a big engineering and construction concern in the north to take up the matter and finance the building of the road.

Mr. Carmichael's visit to New Smyrna Wednesday was for the purpose of putting the proposition before the board of trade with a view to learning what the people here will do about the matter. From this city he went yesterday to Sanford and Orlando to investigate the sentiment in these cities on the matter of extending the road through from the St. Johns river to the west coast. Other cities and towns along the route of the proposed road will be visited by Mr. Carmichael, who will make his report to the Lake Helen Civic league and then to the company which proposes to finance the undertaking.

Two or three different routes to the west coast have been sketched out for the proposed road, each of which has its eastern terminus at New Smyrna, to give connection with the ocean through the inlet, the inland waterway and the Florida East Coast railroad. It is believed the people of New Smyrna will respond willingly and liberally to the proposition.

GOOD ROADS DELEGATE PASSES THROUGH CITY.

B. B. Tatum of Miami, a big real estate dealer and prominent citizen of the Magic City, passed through New Smyrna yesterday in his automobile enroute to Jacksonville to attend the annual convention of the Florida Good Roads association, which convenes in the metropolis today. Mr. Tatum was accompanied by his wife and two daughters, Misses Jane and Frances. On the way to Jacksonville Mr. Tatum is taking careful note of the condition of the roads traveled with the idea of making a report to the delegates to the convention of the condition of the highway the length of the East Coast. He will also ask for the good roads convention to be held in Miami next year. He believes that if the convention is held in Miami next year many of the delegates will make the trip down the East Coast in machines, which will result in much valuable boosting for a good, hard surfaced highway the full length of the coast.

Clarence Griffin returned Monday to his home in Kissimmee after a visit with relatives in this city. He was accompanied home by Herbert Fuller, who will visit in Kissimmee.

AMENDMENTS TO BE VOTED ON THIS FALL

COUNTY OFFICES TO BE FOR TERMS OF FOUR YEARS—GOVERNOR TO APPOINT MILITARY OFFICERS.

Florida voters will be required to vote on three changes in the constitution of the state at the general election, to be held on the first Tuesday in November, which will be November 3rd.

The three amendments bear materially upon the election of all county officers, commissioned officers of the state militia and the powers of the state judiciary.

The terms of office of the county officers will be made uniform should the amendment pass the general election, and will allow four-year terms for all offices after the election of 1916. The governor will appoint all of the commissioned officers of the state militia, and their terms of office shall be continuous during the pleasure of the governor.

The new amendment relating to the judiciary specifically prescribes its compensation set by the state legislature and terms of office.

Following are copies of the three amendments passed by the last legislature, to be submitted to a vote at the coming general election:

County Officers.

Committee substitutes for joint resolutions Nos. 34, 89 and 98:

A joint resolution proposing an amendment to section six (6) of article 8 of the constitution of the state of Florida, relating to county officers.

Be it resolved by the legislature of the state of Florida, that the following amendment to section six (6) of article 8 of the constitution of the state of Florida is hereby agreed to and shall be submitted to the electors of the state at a general election, to be held on the first Tuesday in November, A. D., 1914, for ratification or rejection:

Section 6. The legislature shall provide for the election, by qualified electors, in each county, of the following county officers: A clerk of the county court, a sheriff, constables, a county assessor of taxes, a tax collector, a superintendent of public instruction and a county surveyor. The term of office of all county officers shall be for four years, except that of county assessor of taxes and county tax collector, who shall be elected for two years, until at the general election to be held in the year A. D. 1916, when and after which they shall be elected for a term of four years. Their powers, duties and compensation shall be prescribed by law. The legislature shall provide by law for the care and custody of all county funds, and shall provide the method of reporting and paying out all such funds.

Provided, county treasurers elected in general election held in 1914 shall hold office for the term elected.

Military Officers.

Committee substitute for house joint resolution No. 281—

Proposing an amendment to section 16 of article 5 of the constitution of the state of Florida, relating to the appointment of commissioned officers of the state militia:

Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Florida:

That the following amendment to section 16 of article 5 of the constitution of the state of Florida is hereby agreed to and shall be submitted to the electors of the state for adoption or rejection of the next general election hereafter; that is to say, that section 16 of article 5 shall be amended to read as follows:

Section 16. The governor shall appoint all commissioned officers of the state militia, including an adjutant general for the state, with rank of brigadier general, who shall be chief of staff. The duties and compensation of all of the officers so appointed shall be as fixed by law. The terms of office of all commissioned officers of the organized militia shall be continuous, during the pleasure of the governor, subject to such laws as may be enacted by the legislature providing for their retirement for age or other causes.

Judiciary Powers.

Joint resolution No. 547.

Proposing an amendment to section 1 of article 5 of the constitution of the state of Florida, relating to the judiciary.

Be it resolved by the legislature of the state of Florida:

That the following amendment to section 1 of article 5 of the constitution is hereby agreed to and shall be proposed and submitted to the electors of the state for approval or rejection at the next general election hereafter, that is to say, said section 1 of said article shall be amended to read as follows:

Section 1. The judicial power of the state shall be vested in a supreme court, circuit courts, criminal court of record of Volusia county, criminal courts, justices of the peace and such other courts or commissions as the legislature may from time to time ordain and establish. The legislature may prescribe the compensation of the justices and judges of the several courts, but no court heretofore established, under the constitution and laws of Florida shall be hereby abolished.

Moses and the Commandments.

A simple cross marks the spot which investigators of Sinai have decided is the place where Moses read out to the children of Israel the laws of God. The mountain itself must stand for the monument. Rus Safah, the elevation on which the cross stands, is wild, barren and rocky. About three hundred yards from the base of the mountain there runs across the plain a low, semi-circular mound which forms a kind of natural theater; while farther distant, on either side of the plain, the slopes of the enclosing mountains would afford seats to an almost unlimited number of spectators. Not far off there is an extensive recess which was probably used as a camping ground. No spot on the whole peninsula is so well supplied with water and pasture.—Strand Magazine.

Improving Submarines.

The day is approaching when sea-going submarines of high surface speed will accompany the main fleet on the high seas. Large vessels of this type, of 21 knots speed, have been designed for the United States navy. Great Britain is building, in the Nautilus, the largest submarine in existence, which is intended to be as seaworthy while on the surface as the latest type of destroyer. Its surface speed will be not less than 21 knots, and it will have a submerged speed of from 15 to 16 knots; it will carry six torpedo tubes, and the surface displacement will be about one thousand five hundred tons.

Duke of Northumberland.

Henry George Percy, seventh duke of Northumberland, is the largest landowner in England. His estates stretch almost from sea to sea, and he can ride 100 miles and not once leave his own domain. In appearance he is tall and thin, with reddish hair and flowing whiskers. To Americans it will be interesting to note that James Smithson, who bequeathed the sum of $500,000 to establish the Smithsonian institution at Washington, was a great-uncle of the present duke of Northumberland.

Elephant Remembered Him.

When Henry Shaw revisited a circus to which he had belonged many years before, no one of the people connected with it recognized him, but the elephant started trumpeting as soon as he appeared, and showed every sign of glad recognition.

Life's Service and Joys.

Hail, social life! Into thy pleasing bounds I come to pay the common stock, my share of service, and, in glad return, to taste thy comforts, thy protected joys.—Thomson.

Weaker Than Water.

"Walter, return this tea whence it came," said the sad-looking individual. "If I drank much of that I would get so that ordinary water would make me drunk"—Current Opinion.

Value of Money.

I consider him a wise man who does not overrate the value of money, nor thirst for it, nor found all his hopes on it. . . . Who makes a good and rightful use of it may be called its lord and owner.—Petrarch.

Preservative of Youth.

None of the nature studies requires much money or time. A cheap illustrated guidebook, an opera glass, and, if possible, some walks and talks with an expert, and you will learn almost immediately to identify a score or more of flowers, or birds, or constellations, or mushrooms, and you will have found a hobby on which you may ride away from Death. Try it, young men, lest you grow old. Try it, old men, before you grow tired. Escape into the open from these narrow indoor days and learn the way to where the wild folk dwell. In their land you will find the help of the hills, and hope wide as the world, and strength, and youth, and happiness. Try it.—Samuel Seville, Jr., in Lippincott's Magazine.

Learn to Write Well.

First legibility; second, alightness, should be the endeavor in handwriting and let the "character" and the "individuality" take care of themselves. If you wish to devise a signature hard to forge, that is another thing; but one's every-day handwriting should be plain and as good-looking as one can make it. The art of writing a neat, legible, well-punctuated, correctly expressed and spelled letter should belong to every high-school graduate, much more to every college graduate; and the thanks of the community are due to those who are testing and trying to improve our methods of education; but they must remember that the letter-style is properly more loose and conversational than any other, and therefore should not be criticized in just the same way.

Good Luck or Hard Work?

The question of failure or success is such a wide one that the majority of people merely touch on it and attribute their condition to luck. Do you know what successful men say about luck? They scoff at it, declaring that good luck is another name for hard work, which rarely fails to bring rewards. Evading one's responsibilities or passing over opportunities means a bad mess of life, no matter what name you tack to it. Want of forethought is something for which each person is responsible, and it keeps many a man providing property for his family and deprives good men of helpmates they expect to have in the women they marry.

The Unnamed Locality.

"And this," said the alleged old soldier, postering a long-suffering editor who was an old soldier, "is where Arabs were massed in front of us. Here"—pointing to another place on a dirty pocket-map—"is where our division was drawn up in Sahara. We deployed in this direction, and our left wing was attacked by the enemy on this knoll. Just at this point I was wounded on the left shoulder, and a hundred yards farther on I got my right arm shattered by a piece of one of our own shells, and—" "But," interrupted the bored editor, "where did you get your brains blown out?"—London Tit-Bits.

A Curious Revival

By F. A. MITCHEL

One day a man of uncertain appearance, so far as age was concerned, called at a dwelling that is considered a landmark on the northern end of Manhattan island and asked for the lady of the house. Mrs. Van Valkinburg, the occupant, asked her daughter Edith to go down and see what he wanted. She did so, and the moment she looked at him she started.

He was of medium height, very thin and of a leathery complexion. His eyes were deep set in his head and had a peculiar glitter, such as is seen in the eyes of one who has gone a long while without sleep. As to his age, he might have been twenty-five, and he might have been seventy-five.

"Pardon the intrusion," he said. "Many years ago I left this house, which was then my home, to attend lectures at a university in Germany. I have not been here since."

It seemed to Miss Van Valkinburg that she listened to a Punch and Judy figure. Never had she heard or dreamed of such a voice. The vocal tubes seemed to be dry and stiff. The lady involuntarily cleared her throat, as if to liberate that of her visitor.

"Will you be seated?" she said. "Thank you," replied the man, who was dressed like a gentleman of fashion of half a century ago. As he spoke he looked about him.

"You rent the house, do you not?" he said.

"Yes, but why do you infer that?" "The furniture is changed, but some of the pictures that were hung on the walls hang there now. That"—pointing to a portrait—"is my father."

The picture referred to represented a man of sixty.

"Indeed!" said the lady, beginning to quake inwardly at being alone with this singular person.

"Yes; when I went abroad I bade him goodbye in this very room. We little thought that we should never meet again."

These last words were intended to be spoken in a sad tone. They sounded like a street organ playing "Annie Laurie." The pipes refusing to respond at the words "I'd lay me down and die," giving instead a series of croaks. Miss Van Valkinburg was glued to her chair in terror.

"It was my curse for science," he continued in tones something like those of a boy whose voice was changing—the first part a high squeak, the last a subterranean rumble. "That was a time when thinkers were beginning to wonder if life might not be preserved in a subconscient condition. The man with whom I studied, Dr. Schinkel-friedheim—"

The last syllable of this extended name was cut off by a violent fit of coughing. It sounded to Miss Van Valkinburg as if a cat had been caught in a leather pipe and was strangling. She did not know whether to cry for help or to take up a bellows that stood beside the fireplace and blow a passage through his windpipe. Before she could decide the paroxysm was over. The gentleman leaned back in his chair, holding his handkerchief to his mouth. There was every evidence of tears from the violent coughing except the tears. His eyes seemed as dry as his throat.

"I was speaking," he said presently, "of Professor Schinkel."

"Yes, yes, I know whom you mean; don't try it again," interposed the listener.

"He was a wonderful man."

"He must have been," Miss Van Valkinburg hastened to put in, dreading lest another mention of his name might bring about another paroxysm.

"Half a century before our wonder workers of the Institute For Original Research learned how to introduce the organs of one living being into another. Professor—"

"I know whom you mean."

"Succeeded in extracting life's potentialities from the human system, leaving life itself to resume those potentials. At the difficult word the visitor's vocal organs again showed signs of collapse."

"Potentialities," supplied the lady.

"Whenever a successful process of revival was applied."

There was a weird look in the man's eyes, the look of one about to tumble into a grave, that proved the limit of Miss Van Valkinburg's endurance.

"Excuse me for one moment," she said and hurried out of the room.

She hunted for the butler to go and get the visitor out of the house before he collapsed, but the butler had gone out on an errand. She spent some time telephoning for assistance; but, not knowing just what she wanted, there was no result. Then she took a peep into the parlor to find it vacant. The visitor had gone.

The body of Edward Warren Schermerhorn, decorated by Professor Carl Schinkel-friedheim Dec. 10, 1882.

Fortunately for science, a worker in the Institute For Original Research got wind of the matter and succeeded in getting possession of the mummy. It is not yet known what disposition has been made of it.

Now, who revived Mr. Schermerhorn, and how did he manage to get back to the home of his youth? That is the mystery of this story.

News from Fair Florida Briefly Told

Work has commenced on a new $200,000 city hall at Tampa.

The new federal building at Miami was opened to the public Saturday.

Palatka Masons have purchased a site and expect shortly to erect a temple.

The Boy Scouts of Miami have raised a fund with which to buy a town clock.

The building on which the Florida building at the Pan-American exposition at San Francisco is to be located was dedicated Tuesday.

Miami has officially adopted eastern time and that enterprising city is now one hour ahead of the rest of Florida. The change was effective last Sunday morning.

A party of Chicago capitalists have bought 20,000 acres of land in Orange county to be used for colonization purposes. The price is given as $100,000.

Thinking him a burglar, John Pring shot his companion, Emmett H. Huesler at Vero Sunday morning. Both young men are from St. Louis, Mo., and were on a camping trip.

By figures obtained from the office of the collector of customs, the value of merchandise exported from all Florida ports during the year ending June 30 last, was approximately $42,172,079. The value of merchandise imported during the same period was $9,950,642.

Child Acts Surgeon's Role.

Sarah Shaffer, thirteen years old, of Los Angeles, Cal., developed into a little heroine when her five-year-old sister fell on the sidewalk while at play and shattered her elbow. Dr. Edward G. Wiley, chief police surgeon, explained patiently over the telephone how the splint should be put on, and Sarah made such a good job of it as to win the admiration of all who saw the tiny patient when she arrived at the receiving hospital with her little amateur nurse. The children's father is at the county hospital and their mother went to visit him. Maybelle fell and broke her arm. Sarah called up the receiving hospital, but owing to the distance was advised to call one of the district doctors. She could raise none, and again called the receiving hospital. Doctor Wiley told Sarah what to do to relieve the baby's pain, while the ambulance raced out to the Shaffer home, and Sarah obeyed instructions to the letter.

Probable Duration of Sun.

Adopting the well-known hypothesis of Helmholtz, which attributes the production of the heat emitted by the sun to its contraction, an idea can be formed of the sun's duration. If one gives to the sun a co-efficient of expansion intermediate between that of mercury and that of gas, one arrives at the conclusion that it has taken one million to three million years for the sun to contract to its present radius; in particular, it would have taken ten thousand years to contract from infinity to a radius twice its present radius. Finally, the sun will take 200,000,000 years to contract from its present radius to half that radius, and even then its temperature at the surface will be 3,000 degrees.—Scientific American.

Minister Was Puzzled.

At a marriage service performed some time ago in a little country church in Georgia, when the minister said in a solemn tone: "Will thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" Instead of the woman answering for herself, a gruff man's voice answered: "I will." The minister looked up very much perplexed and paused. He repeated the sentence, and again he saw gruff voice answered, "I will." Again the minister looked up surprised, not knowing what to make of it, when one of the groomsmen at the end of the row said: "She is deaf. I am answering for her."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Importance of Trifles.

After a mad chase the escaped lunatic was carried back to his ward and the affairs of the asylum were resumed as before. "Beats all," panted an attendant, "how the wheels of a large institution can be stopped by a loose nut."

Whole Class Guilty.

A school-teacher complained to the principal the other day that one of the big boys was flirting outrageously with the music teacher, who came in once a day. The principal spoke severely to the class and ended by saying that, out of consideration for the feelings of the culprit, he would not name him in public. At the close of the session, however, he was to come to the principal's office for an interview. "Yes, you guessed it. All the boys in the class showed up."

INTERESTING MOTOR CAMPING TOUR OVER

THE PLEASURES AND EXPERIENCES OF A FOUR-THOUSAND-MILE AUTOMOBILE TRIP AS A VACATION OUTING.

(From The Daytona Gazette-News)

The following is an outline from a diary kept by Dr. G. A. Klock of an automobile camping trip made recently by himself and H. F. Stewart, accompanied by the doctor's colored chauffeur, Ben Moultrie.

After going over again for the fortieth time all accessories from coffee pot to gasoline, we left Daytona at 7:00 p. m. for Jacksonville. It was a dark and windy night; the car worked well but the roads were terrible; sand, palmetto roots and holes kept our pace down so that we were fifteen miles out of Jacksonville at midnight. Here, stopping for our first camp, building a good campfire, we gathered about and laid to a feast of fried chicken, after which we rolled up in blankets and slept well on this pleasant hypnotic until 5:00 the next morning, when, aroused by hoards of mosquitoes we hastily washed our faces in a nearby brook and were in Jacksonville in one hour, eating breakfast in the Hotel Burbridge.

Taking the steamer for Charleston that afternoon at 2:00 o'clock we enjoyed a stormy night, all being seasick, and getting into dock at 9:00 o'clock Sunday morning. After finding out that the boat company did not return the 15 gallons of gasoline that they took out of our tank, we managed to fill up again and as the clock was striking the hour of 10:00 we left the city for Columbia, the capital of South Carolina, which was 147 miles away. When out four miles a rear tire blew out, and it was on with a new one, which delayed us 30 minutes. Passing through a rolling country, roads fair, cotton fields on all sides, we journeyed on through Orangeburg, a bustling cotton town, and as night came on were within 30 miles of Columbia. Pitching our tent we had supper of fried eggs, bacon, coffee, bread and butter, after which we entertained ourselves with songs until 10:00 o'clock. We slept well until 5:00 a. m. when breakfast was served on wooden plates and coffee in tin cups, having to use our canvas pail as a basin for bathing or take turns pouring water in each other's hands. It was a cold morning and very windy and after a chilly ride of 30 miles we reached Columbia. Only stopping long enough to get a banner of the city, we left for Camden, 35 miles away. Here taking the wrong road we were in sand—and more sand for 10 miles. By putting on chains we managed to pull through. Roads were plentiful, too, but it was pleasant at times for, besides filling a boiling radiator with cold water we could bathe our hot faces and hands; also made to our heart's content in the same brook. Mountains began to show up; the rolling lands gave place to hills, valleys and farms. After a hard four-hours we got into Camden, and about 10 miles we ate lunch beside a gurgling brook at 2:10 p. m.

Resting an hour we were on again, heading for Charlotte, N. C., 113 miles away. The roads were rough but we made good time and camped 15 miles out of Charlotte, near an old cotton gin. We were still in South Carolina, but out early the next morning and reached the city about 9:00 o'clock. Here blown out tubes were replaced and tanks filled with gas and oil.

Leaving Charlotte at 10:30 our next point was Greensboro, N. C., 89 miles from Charlotte. Passing through the villages of Concord, Salisbury, Lexington and High Point we drove into Greensboro all O.K. at 5:00 in the afternoon. After eating we started out, passing out by the garage where we got tacks in both front and rear tires. Changing these we went out five miles and camped for the night in a fine place but rightfully named "Camp Freezout," for it was very cold all night. We broke camp for the day's run at 7:00 in the morning, our goal being Lynchburg, a run of 123 miles from Charlotte via Danville, Chatham and Alta Vista. All went well until a large piece of iron, broken off of a road machine, struck our crank case, cracking it and losing most of our oil. Having a bar of soap we made a hasty patch by filling the crack with it. We were now in Old Virginia, having crossed the state line just out of Danville. Driving out about 10 miles we had lunch beside the road and on again for Lynchburg. We were now in a great tobacco country, houses on all sides for curing the plant ready for the market. Roads were very hilly and rough and we only made about 100 miles when the shades of night came on us. Out of Alta Vista, camping beside the Stanton river, proved to be one of the most pleasant of camping places. Fried rabbit formed our supper and after a game of cards we went to bed and did sleep justice, for none needed a sedative after a day's riding over rough roads in the hot sun. Leaving here 7:00 the next morning we made Lynchburg about 10:00 in the forenoon, and now we had the roughest part of our trip, Lynchburg to Charlottesville. It was fords, hills, stones and the like all the way. Our baggage, which was tied on our running boards on either side, got wet time after time as we passed through fords that natives told us were very shallow, but all went well and passing through the mountain towns of Amherst, Livingston, Coveseville, North Garden and Red Hill we reached the beautiful city of Charlottesville, Va., with a population of 10,000. Here is located the University of Virginia, founded by Jefferson in 1825, the most renowned institution in the south.

Two miles out we camped for the night, clear and starlight, but were out early the next morning and off for Washington, 123 miles. Here we passed through a historical section, for cities such as Culpepper, Warrenton and Fairfax Courthouse were in times past scenes of desperate encounters between the Federal and Confederate armies. When out of Warrenton six miles we decided to stop for the night, as it looked like rain, but none came, and at 8:00 the next morning we were on again and rolled into Washington at 3:00 in the afternoon.

I can assure you that it was a pleasure to again see a bath and to clean up. Taking a guide we saw the city and after putting on a new rear spring were ready at 9:30 the next morning to strike out. Baltimore was made in two and a half hours. Over good roads and through a beautiful country, we kept on, crossing the Susquehanna river at 4:00 in the afternoon at the city of Havre De Grace, eating lunch in the little town of Perryville, across the river, and camping that night three miles out of Wilmington, Del. Bright and early we broke camp, our destination being Jersey City. Passing through the cities of Philadelphia, Trenton, New Brunswick, Elizabeth and Newark we rolled up to the Grand Central station in the afternoon, tired, dusty and hungry. At 9:00 the next morning the Overland rolled on the ferryboat for New York at the Cortland street ferry, up Broadway, out Fifth avenue, Nicholson avenue and again Broadway, we were in Yonkers at noon. Halting only long enough to eat a lunch of bread and milk, we passed through the city of Tarrytown into Ossining. Here we were escorted through the state prison of Sing Sing, where 1,523 prisoners are confined, and on again as far as Fishkill, where we camped for the night. The next day brought us into Albany at noon, and into Herkimer at night, having passed through the cities of Schenectady, Amsterdam, Fonda, St. Johnsville and Little Falls. After spending a good night in Herkimer we left there at 8:00 in the morning for Carthage, via Middleville, Poland, Boonville and Lowville, reaching Carthage about 4:00 in the afternoon, 80 miles from Herkimer. Buying provisions for supper, we hastened on to the small village of Harrisville, which was 20 miles away. Halting to say hello to a few friends we went on out four miles and camped on the old farm of my father's.

The next morning we left bright and early for Gouverneur, getting then to Black Lake, where we ate our lunch. Then crossing the toll bridge we went to the St. Lawrence river near Morrisstown. Stopping an hour we spent the time wading and bathing in the clear, cold water, and starting again we headed for Watertown. The roads were good, excepting where we had to detour on account of the building of state roads. Passing through the villages of Hammond, Chippewa Bay, Redwood and Yreka we camped 15 miles out of Watertown in a beautiful spot, apple trees in full bloom on all sides. A nearby brook to furnish water made it an ideal spot. Leaving here in the morning about 7:00 o'clock we started on roads all macadam, going through Watertown, Adams, Adams Center and into Pierpont Manor, where we had breakfast. On again, reaching Syracuse in four hours, we kept on, passing through Auburn, Seneca Falls, Seneca and Canadawaga. Well do I remember this spot. The road passed very close to the lake shore and down went a tire. It took us an hour to put in a blowout patch and a lacing boot on the outside before we were on again through Avon into Batavia at about 5:00 and Buffalo at 9:30, having made the record run of our trip, 224 miles, with only one tire trouble and over all macadam roads.

Stopping at the Hotel Monroe for the night we were up early Sunday morning, just two weeks from Charleston. We drove to Niagara Falls for the day; saw the sights and were back to Buffalo at 4:00 in the afternoon. We decided to take a boat trip, and putting the car on the boat had a very pleasant ride that night to Detroit, Mich., getting in at 9:00 the next morning. Filling with gas we again started out, but made a mistake and took the road leading to Pontiac, and when out 16 miles had to turn back and come into the city and go out Michigan avenue. This delayed us two hours, so that it was 12:40 before we reached the university town of Ann Arbor. We drove about the city for awhile to see the changes, if any, since I was a student there. We left at 3:00 for Jackson, 40 miles west. Roads were sandy but good time was made. Got into Jackson at 5:00 o'clock with a blown-out tire. Eating supper in a restaurant while a tire was being put on, we left for Battle Creek, another 40 miles away, and passed through the city about 9:00 o'clock in the evening. Having not many miles to our credit we determined to push on and at 12:00 o'clock were in sight of the lights of Kalamazoo. Here a hasty camp was pitched and finding some old railroad ties we made a good fire. It was so cold that for lack of comfort we broke camp at 5:00 the next morning and went into town for breakfast. It was a fine, clear day and roads getting better, we had for our goal the city of Chicago. All went well and we passed through the cities of Paw Paw, Niles, La Porte, Valparaiso and Hammond, getting into Chicago at 5:00 in the afternoon. Putting the car in a garage we located the Hotel Revolt and had a good night.

The next morning, having unloaded our camping outfit and washed the car, we left for Madison, Wis., via Evinston, Highland Park and Lake Geneva, but the clay roads were rough and every section a cross road, until a stranger knew not which to take, but nothing daunting we kept on, reaching Madison at midnight, believing in the old axiom, "Better late than never." Staying here one day, we went over the university grounds and buildings, due to the courtesy of A. W. McConnell, the superintendent, who spent a month in Daytona last winter. Taking in a ball game in the afternoon, Madison vs. Racine, and theater in the evening, we left the next morning in the rain for Chicago.

The roads were terribly muddy and slippery, but chains and good driving got us along very well, going back by the way of Janesville, Rockford and Elgin. Just out of the last named town a tire was punctured and do our best could not get a patch to hold, and after taking a tire off and patching it five times, bought a new tube in Elgin. At 11:00 we were back again in the Windy City. We were up early and packing up again left the city at 10:00 for Indianapolis, via Lafayette, then to Louisville, Ky., a distance of 394 miles, dividing this into three days' driving we hurried on. At 8:00 that night we were 21 miles out of Lafayette and camped in a school yard. Roads were fairly good but heavy. Breaking camp early we were in Indianapolis at noon and passing right through made on to the village of Seymour that night. Eating breakfast in Seymour we were in Louisville at 12:00 o'clock. Buying a new casing for a rear tire we put it on and started over rough roads, heading for Mammoth Cave, Ky., 116 miles distant.

The roads were poor and very rough, being paved with cobble stones the size of a man's head, with no top dressing, being done during the Civil war by the Union army in order to make them passible in rainy weather. When out about 40 miles we stopped for the night near Bardestown. The next day brought us into Cave City at noon, a little country town 10 miles from the cave. After dinner, which we did not hurry much, for the thermometer stood at 102 in the shade, we drove to the cave over a very rough and rocky road. We visited the cave, one of the best of nature's wonderful works, and leaving at 5:00 o'clock drove back to Cave City and about six miles, camping on the farm of Mr. White by the side of a beautiful spring. Pressing on in the morning at 4:00 o'clock we were within three miles of Nashville when down went a tire and front spring. This was in front of the National cemetery where 15,121 soldiers are resting in peace.

Having changed a tube we drove into Nashville and found a garage where the spring was replaced and the carbon burned out of the cylinders. We left the city at 8:00 that night, heading for Chattanooga, distant 143 miles. It being a very dark night we got lost and only made 20 miles and camped in a cedar grove. The next morning we drove into Murfreesboro at 8:00 o'clock. Lots of hills and rough road, but all went well into Manchester, Tenn., where, on account of another bad rear tire, we waited a half-day for a tire to be shipped from Nashville. Night came but the train brought no tire, so patching up the old one we went on but trouble was plentiful. Again lost our way and had to pitch our tent until day. Getting a farmer to figure out a way to get us back onto the main pike, we started, passing the mountain towns of Hillsboro and Pelham and found ourselves at the foot of Montague, a part of the Cumberland mountains. Here an old farmer sent us up an old road almost impassible, the mountain rains having gullied the rock road, and words cannot describe this terrible road, steep, rough and stoney, with curves so sharp that one could hardly turn them. Some of the time going backwards for 50 or 60 feet before the brakes would hold it, made one's hair stand on his head, as he looked down, one side a precipice and the other a rocky ditch, making at times only a few feet. After two hours we managed to make three miles up without the help of Mr. Farmer, who expected to earn ten dollars by our getting stuck. Here we took off our last old tire and drove into Tracy City on a rim. Phoning back to Manchester to have the tire sent on to Tracy City we sat down and waited another half day. Getting it that night at 8:40 we put it on and left town at 9:00 for Chattanooga. I almost forgot to mention the delight that we had in eating soup in this town, for as Mr. Stewart facetiously said, it was "Soup for dinner and soup for tea, soup as hot, as hot could be." Twenty miles rolled off and then "one dollar please" to get down the mountain, but this was well worth the price. It was very steep but well graded; our brake band burned and we had to put the car in reverse gear and let the clutch drag in order to hold the car. Passing through Sequatchie and Jasper and near to Rankin's Ferry, where we camped for the night. The next morning we crossed the Tennessee river and here again just missed a serious accident, for a steep grade stalled the engine as we were leaving the boat and the burned brake bands not holding we barely hit the ferry as we went backward. Starting again we went into Chattanooga without any mishap at about 9:00 o'clock. After getting breakfast we took the trolley up Lookout Mountain and spent our time sightseeing until 2:00 in the afternoon when we left for Atlanta, another 143 miles. Our way lay through Chickamauga Park, which is covered with monuments, marking the positions of the different regiments during this terrible battle of the civil war; also tablets stating who commanded and the number engaged. Spending some time in reading these, we went on, passing through Lafayette and going over Taylor's Ridge via Trion, which people told us was a better route, and camping that night just outside of Rome, Ga., at which place we ate breakfast, having covered 75 miles of the 143.

This being Sunday morning we did not hurry and after a good meal kept a good pace through Cartersville, Acworth, Kenesaw and Marietta. The tire trouble again started. It was a hot day and the cementless patches would not stay on, and after trying to get along by repeated patching we phoned in and had a tube sent out to us from Atlanta. One came in an hour and putting it on drove into the city with flying colors at 1:00 o'clock, going directly to the Hotel Arogon. We left Atlanta at noon Monday and when out 15 miles were caught in a thunder storm, the worst that I had ever experienced. Rain, wind and hail were terrific for 30 minutes, and we were by this time as wet as water could make us, but on we went, though only a short way, for a piece of gear was broken off in the differential and we turned back and drove into Atlanta, going to a garage. Got this piece out after eating supper and left again. All went well until another storm, but this time the curtains being on, it was dry as could be, our clothes having dried very nicely during the afternoon. The rain beating so hard on the top, and watching the slippery clay roads, we could not hear the knock of a dry engine until it refused to go. It was now after midnight and we sat right there by the roadside in the pouring rain the rest of the night. In the morning the sun came up and spreading out all our wet baggage on the fence to dry I drove into Griffin and worked five hours on a bearing that had started to melt. Returned to camp and after eating dinner we packed up and left for Macon. We drove at night until 10:00 o'clock and then struck camp but were out early the next morning, in Macon by noon and Valdosta at about 2:00 o'clock, only halting there to inquire the road, we made the 24 miles into Madison, Fla., in an hour and a half, and after getting cold drinks pressed on toward Live Oak, a distance of 25 miles. Roads were heavy sand and when two miles out of Live Oak another terrific storm. The sand roads became beds of quicksand and sinking down in this we could not move a foot. Waiting until the rain ceased we dug out the wheels and pulled out all right and drove into town at 3:00 o'clock, tired and wet, having covered 177 miles over bad roads without sleep the night before. Leaving Live Oak at 7:00 in the morning we reached Jacksonville at 2:00 in the afternoon. After a two-hours' stop we left for St. Augustine and home, but having three or four punctures to fix in the dark it was 4:00 in the morning before the Overland rolled into Daytona.

Regarding the trip in general the roads had been fair pretty much all of the way; our speedometer had registered 3,900 miles; we had passed through 15 states; used six new tires, four of which were on the car; had been gone 34 days, and had met with no serious accidents, and the spirit and enjoyment of the trip is shown in the fact that all of the participants stand ready to go again.

G. A. KLOCK, M. D.

London Criticizes New York.
The little differences between life in London and New York are by no means all to the credit of the latter. Our letter post crosses London in a couple of hours; theirs often takes a couple of days to cross New York. In London the goods you purchase in the morning may be sent home before the evening; in New York you are lucky if they arrive next day. The parcel post, too, is quite a new thing in America. Add to this such facts as the absence of "hunts" in the hotels—the guests having to resort to the street-corner "shiners"—and the display of dust bins, even in fashionable streets, long after midday, and it will be seen that the "smart" and "slow" of which the American is so fond when comparing himself with us are not always to be applied as he applies them.—London Chronicle.

Mrs. Mosquito a Peril.
Declaring the female mosquito is deadlier than the male, the University of Wisconsin issued recently a statement on how to fight the summer pest. The male, said the bulletin, feeds on the juices of fruits and plants, but the female "gorges herself with blood that her eggs may have abundant nourishment." In water the eggs become "wrigglers," and these must come to the surface to breathe. If oil is poured on the water it suffocates the "wrigglers," thus destroying the new crop of mosquitoes. An ounce of oil will cover 15 square feet.

Therein is the Difference.
A highbrow can retire to his study and emerge with the announcement that he has discovered a subconscious cosmos, and we call it new thought. But a lowbrow can spend five years exploring an unknown continent and claim to have discovered a new animal called the snigglebuck and we are unanimous that it is old bunk.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Daily Thought.
He that bestows a gift should forget it; he that receives one should ever hold it in remembrance.—Solon.

Speed Up!
The World's Not
Fast Enough.

By MOSS.

THE world SPINS. It takes YOU with it. If you sit perfectly STILL all your life you may enjoy the delightful sensation of this world joy riding. However, if you put on a LITTLE SPEED of your own you'll go just so much faster and have lots more fun besides. One way you can speed up is in really giving a little of your valuable time to the ADS. in THIS PAPER. Lots of WIDE AWAKE folks here are SAVING MONEY by going where they are INVITED and are TREATED RIGHT, with good service, square prices and proper quality. Of course, dear friend, you can toss the paper away with a muttered "Bosh!" if you want to. Then you can keep on sitting still. The world will move right on, and maybe you'll enjoy it just as much. But, believe us, plenty of OTHERS are SPEEDING BY YOU! SPEED UP!

ORMOND
ORMOND, July 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Coley Geiger and family left on Sunday for Macon, Ga., where they will be gone some time. Mr. Geiger will finish his course in pharmacy while in that city. In the meantime G. H. Henderson of Fort Pierce, Fla., will attend to Mr. Geiger's drug and prescription business.

Mr. and Mrs. David MacGlashan are taking steps to legally adopt Mary Margaret, the attractive five-months-old baby whom they took from the Children's Home society, Jacksonville, when she was but five weeks old.

The little dance held at the Yacht club on Friday evening was much enjoyed by the young people and gave a very good opportunity for those taking part therein to practice up on the new dances. The affair will be repeated this week.

Burglars entered the Israel Putnam bungalow on the Peninsula either last Saturday night or Sunday. David MacGlashan, who has charge of the residence, went over to look through the place on Sunday afternoon, taking with him Charles Totman, and found a door slightly ajar and rugs, clocks, furniture, etc., both outside of the bungalow and inside, packed ready to be carried away. Steps are being taken to locate the guilty parties.

Mrs. Macon Thornton, since her second operation, has been steadily improving, and expects to be able to leave the hospital where she now is in Nashville, going to the home of her sister, Mrs. Allan Campbell, Spring Hill, Tenn., and will also visit other friends and relatives in that vicinity.

Dan Waldron left Sunday for Asheville, N. C., where he expects to look into the matter of taking a position with his brother-in-law in the cement business.

We are glad to be able to state that James Carnell is still improving, and it is hoped will soon be able to be brought home.

Nature's Vivid Coloring.
The grandest phenomenon of nature is the glorious purple and crimson that sometimes spreads over the sky after sunset. Beginning with a splash of salmon hue, the evening purple spreads into the higher regions of the sky and covers the whole heavens with a curtain of deep red, full of mystery. In the mountains one is astonished to see this rose or violet color produce no shadow but bathe the entire landscape.

SHE WAS A PEACH

By SETH MONROE.

"Anthony? You mean Jim Anthony who used to cover this territory for King & Co.? Why, he has another route now, and he ain't traveling for King & Co. any more, neither. And Letty—you remember Letty, who used to be in service here. Well—say, I'd best start right at the beginning."

"Letty was the housemaid at this hotel when Anthony was King & Co.'s best salesman. Her mother had brought her up very strict, and when she died Letty was only eighteen and knew about as much of the world as a child does. The house was worth about two thousand, for property had been going up for a long time; but Letty couldn't live on nothing while it was on the market, so she came to the 'tavern' as second housemaid. In those days service of that kind wasn't considered anyways lowering in Wakefield."

"Anthony was staying over night. It was a small town on his route, and he hadn't made many sales that year, and he was naturally a bit depressed. But when he saw Letty sweeping down the hall he brightened up a bit. Anthony always liked a pretty face. So he came up to her."

"Hello, kid, you sure are a peach," he says, and kisses her. That done, he goes into his room, thinking no more about it."

"Letty was flabbergasted. She had always been taught that to kiss a girl meant you wanted to marry her, and here was a perfect stranger who had kissed her the minute he set eyes on her. The little foot put down her broom and began to cry with happiness. Anthony was about forty and rather fat and flashily dressed, but he was all gold in Letty's eyes."

"Next morning Anthony, having renewed his grouch, went out of his room carrying his suit case. He met Letty, who had been waiting on the stairs. 'Morning, miss,' said Anthony, and passed on, leaving Letty still more flabbergasted."

"I guess she cried all that day, but when night came she had made up her mind. Of course a fine gentleman like Anthony wouldn't want to marry a girl in service. Her little head was full of romances. She had read about men being true to death, and all that, and she made up her mind to make herself worthy of Anthony."

"She took her savings and went to night school with them. By the end of the year Letty was a fair stenographer and bookkeeper, and, as the young woman who kept books for the 'tavern' was leaving to get married, Letty stepped into her shoes. The salary was a dollar less than her wages had been when she held the broom, but she was mighty glad."

"At the end of the year Anthony comes on his route again, and when Letty looked up from her books and saw him standing, waiting to register, her heart beat so that she couldn't speak."

"Anthony looked at her, and his grouch began to clear away. He always liked pretty girls."

"You sure are a peach, kiddo," he said, and chuckled her under the chin. 'How about the movies tonight?'

"With that he was gone, leaving poor Letty in a heaven of ecstasy. Her god had noticed her again; he was going to take her out. That flashy chap was a king in Letty's eyes."

"I guess Anthony wanted to take her out all right, though he hadn't the slightest notion that he had ever met her before. But he fell in with some of the boys, and they got him into a poker game, and when he got out, at midnight, he was $72 in the hole. And by that time he had forgotten all about Letty, who had been waiting all primed up since eight o'clock."

"Letty cried herself to sleep, and next morning Anthony was gone before she was down in the office."

"She gave up hope then, but she stayed on at the 'tavern,' keeping the books. She wouldn't have anything to do with the young fellows of Wakefield, but she was always nice to traveling men. About the time when Anthony was due again she began to ask timid questions about him. But nobody told her much; you see, they guessed something had happened between them. But at last Letty got the truth from a young salesman who was making the rounds."

"Anthony?" he asked. "Why, he won't be here any more. I'm covering his territory now for King & Co. You see, they caught him with the goods, miss."

"Goods?" inquired Letty, puzzled. "Yes. Two thousand dollars he had taken to gamble with. His case comes up for trial pretty soon, and he'll likely get about four years as a first offender. Poor old Anthony! When he comes out he'll have hard work getting on his feet again."

"Next day Letty accepted two thousand dollars for her house, which had gone up to a good deal more than that in value, resigned her position, and started for New York. She went to King & Co."

"I want to see Mr. King on important business," she said.

"The clerk took her in and Mr. King stared at her, and she stared back at him. There was something tragical about Letty in little things. People didn't like the way she looked into their minds."

"Mr. King was growing uncomfortable when Letty burst out: 'If I pay you will you let him out, Mr. King?'

"I beg your pardon. Whom are you talking about?" asked the head of the firm."

"Mr. Anthony, sir," said Letty, depositing her two thousand dollars upon the table, and Mr. King stared harder than ever."

"Who are you?" he asked, eyeing first her and then the money. 'You ain't his wife, because he wasn't married last time I heard.'

"I'm going to be," said Letty quietly."

"Well, King was glad enough to drop the proceedings, and he took Letty round to the jail to see him. Anthony didn't feel too good to see King, but when he learned that he was to be free he saw the point."

"You can thank this young woman instead of me," says Mr. King. 'And let me tell you I wouldn't have taken her money if it hadn't been for the fact that she was engaged to you. In my opinion she is a good deal too good for you.' With which he turned on his heel, leaving Letty and Anthony looking at each other. To the best of his knowledge Anthony had never seen her before in all his life. He thought it was a game put up by some of his friends."

"'Whose money was it, my dear?' he asked."

"Mine," answered Letty proudly. 'I know you don't care for me any more, but when I heard you were in trouble it seemed—seemed only right for me to—gulp—give you my money.'

"But you told Mr. King you were going to be married to me," said Anthony in bewilderment."

"I wouldn't marry you for all the wealth of Wakefield," Letty flashed out, and meant it, too. Somehow that word Wakefield recalled to Anthony the broken engagement, and then he understood and remembered her. His hand shot out and grasped her under the chin."

"Kid," he said, 'you certainly are a peach.'

"Yes, sir, they have been married nearly three years now, and he travels for Constable. Letty is as proud as a queen of Anthony. I guess there is the right woman for the right man everywhere, but, Lord, what luck Anthony had finding her!"

RICH IN HISTORIC INTEREST

Excellent Reasons Why Mississippi's
Old Capitol Should Be Preserved
by People of State.

A bill for renovating Mississippi's old statehouse calls for the legislature of the state to consider a question more or less continuously discussed by Mississippians ever since the completion of the present capitol in 1903. For a comparatively modest sum the old capitol may be restored and put to excellent and appropriate use. So that today the sentimental plea for the building's preservation is strongly reinforced by utilitarian arguments."

Mississippi's old statehouse should be as dear to Mississippians who take pride in their state's history as the Cabildo is to Louisianians. Built in 1839 the old capitol at Jackson is identified with the most stirring events in the most stirring period of Mississippi's history."

In 1849 it housed the convention that formally asserted the principle of secession as a state right. In its hall the convention of 1861 was assembled and the ordinance of secession passed. During the stormy years just following the war it witnessed the dispossession of two governors by federal troops, and staged the notorious "black and tan" convention. It was the scene of the impeachment trial of Governor Ames. In 1890 it sheltered the constitutional convention which framed and enacted the franchise plan that solved the south's most portentous problem."

Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay, Prentiss, Lamar, Walthall, George and other makers of history have addressed Mississippi audiences in the historic structure. It witnessed the election of Jefferson Davis as major general of Mississippi troops at the beginning of the struggle between the states. From its rostrum the Confederate president in 1864 delivered his farewell address to the people of Mississippi."

Housewife's Problem.
At the opening of the Woman's industrial exposition in New York, City Chamberlain Henry Bruere said that getting food to the family is the great problem. The market will not do it, he says. In order to find out what is the right way, he says they sent around the world. They found the German housewives still go to market, but New York women cannot."

ICE

LET'S ALL KEEP COOL!

Hot Days like these are supposed to mean ragged nervos-tension-snapping all around.

But this is not necessarily true.

We can all keep cool—if we try.

It is the job of this Ice Man of yours to supply you with physical coolness in the form of pure ice, but you have to make your own mental coolness. You can do this by being sure that your taking of ice covers all your daily needs with some to spare.

Then you will always have ice for unseen emergencies, and you will not fret if the wagon happens to be a little late.

This is a simple receipt for peace of mind. Many of our customers are using it today with satisfactory results. If you haven't tried it yet, do so at once.

DAYTONA BEACH.

DAYTONA BEACH, July 21.—Rev. H. H. Bowen, pastor in charge of the Daytona Beach Methodist church, will preach at the M. E. church at New Smyrna Sunday morning. Rev. J. H. Abraham will fill the appointment at the Seabreeze avenue church.

The Leisure Hour club met with Mrs. C. H. Wilson on Seabreeze avenue last Thursday afternoon. The study hour was devoted to the conclusion of the book of Job, after which the club enjoyed a short musical program given on the violins and mandolins by Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and Miss Ruth Coates, preceding the social hour. The next meeting, Thursday afternoon, July 29th, will be held at the Geneva at Seabreeze. Mrs. Frank Stengle, hostess, at which time a miscellaneous program will be given.

The foundation of the handsome winter home of S. J. Peabody was started last week on Halifax avenue, adjoining south of the new winter home of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Treglow, and is being erected by Architect and Contractor S. H. Gove, at an estimated cost of between $12,000 and $15,000. The residence will consist of an ample basement with first and second story and attic rooms. The foundation, which is of coquina rock, is being laid under the direction of C. A. Ballough. The outside walls will be of stucco with tile roof. Mr. Peabody has sojourned at the Clarendon several seasons, but was guest at the Seaside Inn last winter.

A deal has just closed between H. A. Horn and C. A. Ballough, in which the former sold to the latter two lots in the Hernandez grant on the river front at Holly Hill. It is understood that Mr. Ballough bought the old Burgoyne boathouse, which he will remodel into a cottage or residence.

C. L. Horn has purchased of Mrs. Charlotte E. Olliver a lot on the corner of Ocean avenue and Lennox avenue, the new street which is being shelled in South Daytona Beach.

Miss Marguerite Reed left Tuesday morning for Atlanta, Ga., in company with her brother, G. Reed, who has been here on a visit with his father and family for a few days, and will continue his journey to his home town, Gainesville, Ga.

Mrs. W. H. Freeman and two boys, Willie and Earl, left Sunday morning for Franklin, N. C., where Mr. Freeman will probably join them later. Mrs. Freeman and children spent the day in Jacksonville with relatives.

The remains of Mrs. Lena Rogers were brought back from Jacksonville on the 1:40 night train Sunday morning. Funeral services were held by Rev. H. H. Bowen at the church at 9 o'clock a. m. and interment was made at Pinewood cemetery. Mrs. Rogers was sister of Mrs. W. V. Wagnon, with whom she had been making her home on Palmetto avenue, Seabreeze. She went up to Jacksonville for an operation in one of the hospitals, from which she unfortunately failed to rally.

Mrs. J. N. Pickett will entertain on Thursday afternoon at 3:00 at a thimble party at her home on Orange street.

Frank N. Johnson and two sons and their families will move to Lake Helen this week, where Mr. Johnson, Sr., has the contract to put up a large hotel building.

Mrs. C. L. Horn, who has been spending a couple of weeks at DeLand, visiting her sister, Mrs. Richards and friends, returned home Sunday and rejoined Mr. Horn who came home a week ahead of her.

Miss Pickett accompanied Attorney Horn on a trip to DeLand in his car Saturday. This was Miss Pickett's first view of the classical old town and she was very favorably impressed with its handsome college buildings and beautiful shade trees.

Mr. and Mrs. Warner of Winter Haven, friends of Miss Blakeslee, came over from the Interior this week and have taken rooms with Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Nicholson on Coates street.

Dr. S. C. Morgan of Meigs, Ga., rejoined his family at the Palm last Saturday on a two-weeks' vacation.

J. F. Kemp of Camilla, Ga., is at the Palm for a short stay.

Mrs. Tillie Brown of Evansville, Ind., arrived last Wednesday to spend the remainder of the summer at the White house, guest of Mrs. J. G. Hampell, the proprietor.

Z. Spinks of Ovelda, manufacturer of cypress shingles, is guest at the White house this week.

George P. Johnson on last Thursday morning received a telegram from Gainesville, Ga., stating that his brother, Col. Fletcher M. Johnson, had received severe injuries in an automobile accident that morning, but at the time was comfortable at a hospital. On Sunday afternoon a second telegram came announcing the death of his brother at 3:45 that afternoon, and that the funeral would take place Tuesday morning at 10:00 o'clock from the home of the deceased. The injuries which occasioned Colonel Johnson's death were caused by an automobile running over him as he alighted from a street car. His leg was broken and he received internal injuries, but at first it was not thought that the accident would end fatally. Mr. Johnson was a prominent attorney and well known over his state. He received the nomination for the state senate at the last primary.

Mrs. Horton, senior and junior, came over from Winter Garden by automobile with Mr. and Mrs. Warren and are located with them in the Nicholson house on Coates street.

John C. Meyers, who came down from Missouri with Mr. Hampell, was called home on business and left on Monday on his return to St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Tibson of St. Augustine, Miss Kennedy and Mr. J. Walker Hilliard of Palatka, formed a pleasant party at the Seaside Inn for a stay of several days.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Floyd, Mrs. Harvey Clark and child of Ocala are at the Inn for a week or two.

Judge W. S. Bullock and wife and daughter, Miss Alice Bullock of Ocala were week-end guests at the Breakers.

Mrs. E. W. Barnhill, E. D. Barnhill of DeLand, C. D. Cannon, W. H. Peaks and E. W. Robinson of Orlando spent Sunday on the beach, guests at the Breakers.

Miss Gertrude Hutchinson of DeLand and friend, Miss Kathleen Searing of Jacksonville were transient guests at the Breakers the first of the week.

D. L. Monroe, a large celery grower of Sanford, spent several days at the Breakers the week past.

Mrs. L. R. Chazel and two small children, Misses Ornle Chazel and Hester Dewey, and Chas. P. Hazel, all of East Palatka, formed a congenial party at the Inn for a week or ten days.

Messrs. W. H. Flint, W. J. Dodge, J. P. Chambers of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Geo. W. Gibbs, Jr., of Jacksonville, were guests at the Inn last week.

Chas. E. Rowton of Palatka, who spent part of last week at the Inn, will return later with his family to spend the remainder of the season.

Roy Chittenden and Joe Chittenden, Samuel Yountz, Brader Williams, O. P. Herndon, Mrs. D. Tremaine, S. A. Tremaine and F. W. Wickham, a Sanford big bunch, were Sunday guests at the Breakers.

C. W. Sams of New Smyrna spent the week-end at the Inn. Mr. Sams was calling on friends in the burg.

The following motor party from Ocala dined at the Breakers Sunday: Mrs. B. Beaschler, Mrs. N. Beaschler, Miss M. Rock, Mr. McFallman, all of Ocala, and Miss Ehrman of New York city.

Mrs. C. G. Miller, Mrs. C. P. Swift and little Miss Mary Davis motored over from Lakeland to spend some time at the Inn. Mrs. Miller is visiting Mrs. Munn of Lakeland.

Must Have Been.

Says Mr. Filson Young in the Fall Mail Gazette: "I began yesterday by swimming in a sunlit sea, continued it by motoring through a hundred miles of lilac and gorse, and ended it listening to the most perfect concert program at Queen's hall that I have ever heard."

Was it not a happy day? The answer, Filson, is in the affirmative, Mr. Punch remarks.

Spoiled the Effect.

"What's the matter?" a colleague asked of the advertising manager. "Matter enough. The fools have placed Mme. Soprano's testimonial for a cold cure on the same page with the announcement that she had a sore throat and couldn't sing."—Topaka Journal.

The Making of a Man.

No university can make a man. . . . Men may load themselves with lore till they stoop beneath the weight of their accumulations, and yet fail to lift a care from the heart of the weary, or impel a single soul an inch on its way to God. The real building of a man is within.—Dr. Clifford.

Discoverers of Illuminating Gas.

It was in 1792 that a Britisher, one Mr. Murdoch, made the first successful experiments on the illuminating properties of gases. Six years later he erected a gas apparatus in Birmingham. In 1802 Monsieur Le Bon illuminated Paris by this new discovery.

Gum Arable and Plaster of Paris.

Into a thick solution of gum arabic stir plaster of paris until the mixture assumes the consistency of cream. Apply with a brush to the broken edges of china and join together. In three days the article cannot be broken in the same place. The whiteness of the cement adds to its value.

British Columbia's Timber.

With the exception of Siberia, Brazil and the northwestern United States, British Columbia's timber wealth is reported to be unparalleled in any other country.

SEABREEZE.

SEABREEZE, July 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Haigh and family, including Mrs. Haigh's mother, Mrs. Williams, Sr., and Miss Roda Butler of North Peninsula drive, left Wednesday for Asheville, Biltmore and other points in the North Carolina mountains. They will be gone until September.

Mrs. Fred Gordon and son, Arthur, of Enterprise, regular summer visitors, will come over to the coast the first of August to spend a month on the beach with Miss Kelly. Mr. Gordon will not be with them this season on account of business north.

The town council is hard after mosquito-breeding places and if the citizens will only co-operate with the sanitation committee as they should there will be a marked abatement of this nuisance soon.

Misses Branchhold, who have been attending the summer normal at Gainesville, are spending a few days in Jacksonville, but are expected home Saturday.

John Dorsett is spending his time pleasantly at the Russell farm, looking after Major Russell in the absence of his sister, Mrs. Mary Baker.

Miss Searing of Jacksonville came over from DeLand last week and is visiting Miss Ott at her home on North Halifax avenue.

News comes to friends here that Oscar Benson, who is at Marietta, Ga., his summer home, has been quite ill, but is slowly recovering from a malignant type of malaria fever. Mr. Benson and family have a winter home on North Halifax avenue.

Mrs. Harradden and Mrs. Blake of Lake Helen will spend a few weeks at the Morrison cottage next month.

J. F. Wilcox and wife, who have been at the Raymond for a couple of weeks or more, leased rooms in the Branch apartment house on Coates street and are now in possession.

Mrs. J. P. Mendel and four children of Palm Beach are spending the month with Mrs. Mendel's mother, Mrs. D. W. McDonald, and other members of the family at their home on North Halifax avenue. Mr. Mendel spent a few days with the family the first of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Norris Keely and children of Tampa are located for a month in the Tuscan villa cottage on North Atlantic avenue. Mrs. Keely is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. McDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Flaherty of St. Augustine arrived the middle of the week to spend two or three days with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Kenney at their home on North Halifax avenue.

The Thursday and Saturday evening dances at the new Nautilus casino, North Seabreeze, are well attended. Good music by the Crystal orchestra, a cool hall and a beautiful dance floor are pleasant combinations not to be reslated by the young society set.

Miss Adelia Ruth Towne, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Towne, entertained eleven of her boy and girl friends Saturday evening at her home on North Halifax avenue. Kenneth Brokaw and Edith Beers of Daytona, and Ada McDonald of Seabreeze, were the prize winners in a game of "see what you can see" on a penny. There were other games, new and old, and the young people had a fine time. At the close of the contests ice cream and cake and candies were served.

Mrs. M. V. Hart, who was not well enough to attend the funeral of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Fortson, when summoned, went down to Bowling Green the day after the funeral to comfort her grandchildren, Mrs. Upson accompanying her. They spent a couple of days with Mr. Fortson and the children and returned home Thursday. Mr. Fortson, who is station agent at Bowling Green, will teach his vacation soon. Adeline and Laura will accompany him as far as Seabreeze to spend the time of his absence with their grandparents.

Mrs. A. E. Allen is spending the month at her home on North Halifax avenue, in the meantime she has all her children at home with her. Wallace Griggs is here on a vacation from the Palatka bank. Mrs. Frank Browning and her two babies of East Palatka are also with her mother, and Miss Stella Browning, her sister-in-law, is over for a few days' stay.

W. L. McClarty returned last Wednesday from several weeks' visit with his relatives in Douglasville, Ga. His youngest son, Harold, accompanied him. Mr. McClarty says when it comes to fried chicken and water-melon old Georgia is not to be passed. They returned home much benefited but somewhat spoiled by the outing.

Mrs. M. V. Young, president of the San Souci club, writing to friends at Daytona Beach, stated that the summer heat at Frankfort, Ind., had been almost unbearable, and that she and the doctor were planning to spend their next summer on the northern lakes.

Dr. H. W. Cox, professor of philosophy and education in the State university at Gainesville, will occupy Professor Wakefield's residence on Oakridge avenue for the month of August. Dr. Cox will bring his wife and their two small children with him.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Stewart, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. D. Finhart of Daytona, motored over to DeLand for a day's outing Monday. They made the trip in Mr. Stewart's car.

The street committee, Geo. W. Buckner, chairman, are resurfacing North Atlantic avenue with shell. There are several very bad places on North Peninsula drive which needs attention.

Very interesting morning bridge parties are being enjoyed at the Seaside Inn and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Stewart on Earl and Ocean streets.

Charles Reed of Bartow autotod across country and was a guest at the Neptune Monday.

Herbert Spencer and mother were spend-the-day guests at the Neptune Thursday.

J. A. Spruill of Gainesville, brother-in-law of Mrs. Fred Richards, spent last week at the Neptune.

W. E. Simmons, accompanied by Mrs. J. A. Clark and Miss Clark, drove the latter's car over from Ovada for a few days' visit with his mother and sister at the Hibbard cottage. Miss Clark spent part of her stay with Miss Jones at the Painter cottage. They returned home Sunday afternoon.

J. B. Jones and Chas. McCulley returned Wednesday to Ovelda after a visit of a couple of weeks on the beach with Mr. Jones' family. Miss Stella Farnell, who was also visiting Mrs. Jones and family, accompanied them back home.

W. J. Waddell, who is spending the month with his family at the Whitsett beach cottage, made a quick trip across country from his home at Winter Park one day last week. He covered the distance, 60 miles, in three and a half hours, arriving here in time to enjoy an eight o'clock breakfast with his family. Mr. Waddell brought back with him some very delicious fruit from his orange grove, which he generously shared with some of his friends.

E. W. Clement on Saturday joined his family at the Wakefield cottage. Mr. Clement, who is on the beach for his health, took the cottage for a month, but has improved so rapidly since he came over that he expects to remain longer.

J. R. Martin and family, Miss Sara Pearl and W. N. Martin and Mrs. Martin, Sr., and his neices, Miss Eugenia and Annie Benton Fuller motored over from Ocala on Thursday in Mr. Martin's handsome Packard, and are guests at the Gray Gables for several weeks.

Mrs. Stilling and son-in-law, Chas. Nushbaum, spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Edgar Dunn and family at Seabreeze beach.

Mrs. G. W. Kingston and house party are occupying the Stewart cottage for a week or ten days. Mrs. Kingston has with her Mrs. Bonner and Misses Winnie and May Kingston and the Misses Peacock of DeLand.

A house party of 15 or more from DeLand have made room reservations at the Neptune for the latter part of this month.

An interesting bridal party, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Lohmeyer of Newport, Ky., and friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hetch of Leesburg, whom they were visiting, motored over and were guests at the Neptune from Tuesday until Friday.

D. E. Austin and family, H. J. Schultz and family, and G. Ringdoff and wife, a motoring party from Jensen, spent part of the week at the Neptune.

Death of Miss Fields.

Miss Gertrude Fields, aged 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Fields of DeLand, died at a beach cottage at 8:00 o'clock Monday night. Miss Fields, who was brought over to the beach as a last hope, was the victim of a severe attack of typhoid fever, from which she had not the vitality to rally. The remains were sent to the undertaking parlors at Daytona and were shipped Tuesday afternoon, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Fields to Lexington, Ky., their old home for interment. Besides her parents Miss Fields leaves a younger sister, Miss Madie Fields.

Prof. Davis to Teach at Miami.

Prof. D. D. Davis, principal for two years of the Seabreeze high school, has been elected to the principalship of the Miami Central grammar school. This is quite a promotion for a young man, and Mr. Davis is receiving the congratulations of his many friends on his promotion. Mr. Davis has many warm friends in Seabreeze and Daytona Beach who will watch his successful career with interest. Mr. Davis and family will leave the latter part of September for Miami to get settled before school opens September 28th. In speaking of his work Mr. Davis is very much pleased over the handsome school building and the interest in school matters taken by the Miami citizens.

Peninsula Residents in California.

A very interesting letter received from Mrs. Daisy Dryer last week gives a vivid account of a pleasant social affair where old Floridian friends met in pleasant reunion. The letter says: "Last Friday, July 11th, Rev. Grant Stewart and wife entertained at luncheon in honor of their Florida friends complimentary to Mrs. Julia Stewart. Those present were: The host and hostess, Mrs. Julia Stewart, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Emma Caldwell, Mrs. Florence Johnson and the writer. Dr. J. W. Kramer and wife brought the party home in their auto at about 5:00 o'clock." The letter further goes on to state that the Stewarts live in a beautiful bungalow parsonage in West Alhambra, and in their Maxwell car enjoy outdoor life. Rev. Mr. Kramer is Mrs. Dryer's brother. Mrs. Dryer speaks most enthusiastically of the country with its mountains and valleys, its flowers and fruits and sunshine and snow. Her friends here will be very glad to know that she is recovering her health on the grand old Pacific slope.

PORT ORANGE.

PORT ORANGE, July 21.—"That success is too dear which is attained by any sacrifice of truth, honor or justice."

Mrs. Mary C. Karn has returned to her home.

W. R. Bull is home again, much better, and was able to walk up to the postoffice.

Mrs. J. J. Vinzant returned home to DeLand by the automobile route Monday afternoon, after a very pleasant stay of some weeks at the Tribbell house.

Miss Bray and her friend, Miss Gutteridge, came over the last of the week to stay some time with the latter's parents in the Vass cottage.

Elmo Dupont spent Sunday with his parents. Elmo is very popular in this "berg." He is holding down the position of freight agent at Hastings and reports a very busy season in that energetic, thriving community.

I. J. Wells has his new cottage on Orange street nearly roofed.

Vincent Savage and wife are visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. T. M. Bangs. They were formerly residents of this place, and are now living west of West Jupiter, where they are engaged in growing citrus fruits. Mrs. Savage has very poor health.

D. T. Mozler is spending a couple of weeks at Daytona Beach.

Some motorcycle riders go through town without regard to state laws, or town ordinances, going at a high rate of speed, and paying no attention to crossings, nor giving warning of their approach. In case of accident it would go badly with these riders. Better go more slowly boys, or you may have the pleasure of a trip to the county seat.

Miss Caroline McDonald on Tuesday last suffered a paralytic stroke that affected her left side. On Thursday she was removed to Dr. Klock's sanitarium. At this writing she is slowly improving. Fortunately her speech was but slightly affected. "Aunt Caroline" is a daughter of the late E. A. McDonald, the pioneer of Port Orange. She enjoys the esteem of her large number of relatives, and as well of the entire community; that she has seen grow from her father's "lone log cabin in the woods" to its present proportions. Many gratefully remember her self-sacrifice in administering to those in need, none of whom were turned empty away. Should the best wishes of this community prevail Miss Caroline will speedily recover.

The rains, though light in this immediate vicinity are giving freshness and beauty to vegetation. Orange trees are putting on a vigorous growth, that was due in June, but "better late than never" is true in this case. But few sweet potatoes have as yet been planted. If planted soon, however, and with a favorable season from now on, there is time to make a good crop.

The regular meeting of the council was held on the 7th inst. Routine business was disposed of. The marshal was instructed to make a tour of sanitary inspection within certain limits and report at next meeting. After discussion of some matters of general interest council adjourned to meet on the 28th inst.

Mrs. W. L. McDonald is not improving as rapidly as her many friends would wish, and is still at Dr. Klock's sanitarium.

Warren Morgan has rented Geo. McDonald's house on Dun Lawton avenue, next door to Martin's ice cream and confectionery store, and is moving in at this writing.

Use Magazine Stories.

An invalid or aged person who enjoys magazine articles sometimes finds the magazines, with their bulk of advertising, hard to handle. If the magazines are taken apart by removing the little wire clips that bind the sections together, the stories or articles can be easily handled separately. And any article specially likely to be enjoyed by a friend at a distance can be sent by mail when separated in this way.

ALLANDALE.

ALLANDALE, July 20.—A carload of shingles, 70,000 arrived last week for C. Christlancy and have been placed on the lots where buildings are to go up.

The foundations for the Hutchingson, Childs, Hobbs and Brock bungalows are ready for the sills and frames.

The coquina wall in front of the Christlancy lot is about finished and it is about the prettiest piece of rock work to be seen anywhere and has been commented on by a number of passers-by in tutor.

The Christlancy bungalow has been framed and the roof will go on this week. This will be the most imposing house so far to go up in Allandale, being 70-foot front and 50-foot deep.

Miss M. Brock has planned for two bungalows on the corner of Ridgewood and Clark place, and two more will be built on the corner opposite and a large house on the two lots on the north of Miss Brooks. This will make five houses at this point.

Ridgewood avenue through Norwood and Allandale was well patronized on Sunday by autos and teams so much that summer travel fortnightly what can be looked for when the winter season opens.

The black walnut library table that H. T. McClellan made for Mrs. Christlancy was sent down on Saturday, and it is one handsome piece of furniture, both as to the wood as well as workmanship. The matching of the top is perfect, being almost impossible to see the joints. Too much cannot be said about the fine work turned out by the constructor.

Kate, the Allandale alligator, is enjoying life in her new home in the rear of the Inn. She's real sassy and objects to being looked at.

We have had some fine rains during the past week that has done so much good. The fruit on the orange trees are as large as they were in October last year.

C. Christlancy left on Monday for a trip north, going to Charleston, S. C., and Baltimore, Md., and will be gone till the end of the week.

Mrs. Walter G. Sparkman is still visiting her mother, Mrs. Howe. She finds Allandale very much improved since she was here last and thinks the change has been all to the good.

Gladstone's Domestic Rule.

Mr. Gladstone once said that he had solved the domestic problem in this way: "Whenever Mrs. Gladstone insists I submit; and whenever I insist she submits." He didn't say, however, whether they took turns about insisting and submitting. Marriage is a failure when one of the parties insists on being the insister and doesn't take turns in submitting to the submitter.

Gossip of the Town
 by the
Town Gossiper

The action of the city council last week in ordering the city treasurer to pay all city warrants in the order in which they are registered has had the effect of at least restoring enough confidence in the city's finances to permit the street committee to hire men to work on the streets. These men now have the assurance they will get their money some time, and that their warrants have a negotiable value.

Nobody denies the need of an efficient fire department in New Smyrna, but from the lack of interest in the department heretofore shown by the citizens the members of the department are easily led to believe the citizens don't care particularly whether the department is a good one, a mediocre one or a minus quantity. Your opportunity to help the fire department in at least a small way will be given next week Thursday, afternoon and evening. Keep this in mind.

"Views of the University of Florida," a new book issued by the state university as a part of the University Record, has been received by the News, and a perusal of it makes one wonder why any native young man of this state should have any desire to seek higher education at any institution other than our own state university. The University of Florida now ranks among the best of the educational institutions and its advantages are well set forth in the pamphlet just issued.

City Treasurer Silvers, I am told, has gone on a vacation, and, it is rumored in "city hall" circles, his departure left the city in a peculiar position. It is stated that the day the city treasurer left the city a note due the Watrous Engine company as a payment on the new fire engine was presented for payment and the holder of the city's money could not be found to make the settlement. As a result the city officials had to take up a course of correspondence explanation with the Watrous people and endeavor to get them to hold up demand for payment of the note until the return of the treasurer. In the meantime payment on city warrants must await the return of the treasurer, and I understand the incident is to be pretty thoroughly discussed at the next meeting of the council.

It is really a pleasure to pick up a Miami paper and read about the things they are doing down in that wonderful little city in the way of boosting and building, and the way the city is forging ahead by leaps and bounds, and it makes a man want to rest his weary head when he thinks that New Smyrna was a prosperous village when there was nothing to mark the site of Miami but a bunch of sand dunes facing unpenetrated tangles of underbrush and woods. Miami has forged ahead because the people have worked together and boosted; they have looked for opportunities to better conditions and build up the town and have grasped these opportunities with energy when they found them; they have left no stone unturned to advertise the town and tell the people all over the country what they are doing and why Miami is a good town. The latest stunt pulled off in the city down the coast is to change the time from central to eastern time, and the whole city did it at one and the same time. All that was needed was to explain why the change should be made to benefit the people and the city, and the change came. This is not said to boost Miami, but merely to call attention to what can be done for any town that has the opportunities, when all factions pull together.

Mrs. W. C. Rowley, who before her marriage was Miss Nettie Pacetti, died suddenly at her home at Ponce Park Monday afternoon of heart trouble. The funeral was held at Daytona Wednesday.

Cecil Roper of Cocoa was a visitor in New Smyrna Saturday.

Mrs. N. L. Pace and children came down from Mayport Saturday for a short visit in this city. They returned Sunday.

W. S. Denslow left yesterday for Lakeland, where he recently purchased a fruit and poultry farm.

Handy Jackson, colored, was up before Mayor Newell Tuesday on a charge of striking his wife. He pleaded guilty and was handed a fine of $3 and costs.

The members of the local Eastern Star chapter enjoyed a social session after the regular lodge meeting last Monday night. Refreshments were served and the occasion was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Treadwell left Monday for New York to enjoy a rest and vacation of several weeks. They will visit various points and will spend some time attending the chautauqua sessions at Chautauqua, New York.

In a private letter from Mrs. E. E. Neal the information is conveyed to friends here that she has recently returned to her home in Indianapolis from Greencastle, where she had been for six weeks with her mother, who has been ill; that Mr. Neal recently broke the little finger on his right hand, and that the family will start August 15 for an automobile trip to Rochester, N. Y., for a visit with the Teats families.

Mrs. J. A. Rogero engineered a pleasing birthday surprise for her husband Wednesday night and the occasion was a pleasant one for the victim of the surprise and all those present. A color scheme of pink and white was carried out, refreshments were served and cards furnished the principal amusement of the evening. Those present were Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Chowning, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Griffin, Misses Cornelia Smith and Fannie Sams and Leo Baker.

Conrad Nordman made a business trip to DeLand Tuesday.

Councilmen M. Leidersdorf and E. J. Rogero and Mayor Newell made a business trip to DeLand Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Roach returned Tuesday from their stay of several weeks in Indiana, and are again occupying their cottage at the beach.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Harris and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Carter of Holly Hill drove down to New Smyrna Sunday afternoon and spent a short time with friends in this city.

Jim Pearson, John Pallison, W. I. Meeks, Sam Pallison and Roy Pitts, all colored, were arrested during the last week on a charge of gambling and all forfeited bonds of $8 rather than face the charge before the mayor.

A. L. Persley and wife left Sunday for points in South and North Carolina, to spend some time visiting relatives. During their absence A. B. Curtis of Wilmington, N. C., is taking the place of Mr. Persley as a train dispatcher.

William Gibbons of Oak Hill was in the mayor's court Monday charged with being drunk and disorderly. In the absence of Mayor Newell the case was heard by President E. L. Greer of the city council. Gibbons entered a plea of guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

Mrs. H. L. Rood was given a pleasant birthday surprise by a number of friends last Saturday evening, the surprise being a complete one and the occasion a pleasant one for all concerned. Mrs. Rood had been down town in the late afternoon and when she returned home in the early evening she found the house had been taken possession of by her friends, the tables had been spread and were loaded with good things to eat, and a happy company awaited her coming. Those who participated in the surprise were Messrs. and Mesdames W. A. Whitman, M. Leidersdorf, G. H. Crane and E. A. Latham and the Misses Harriet and Louise Crane and Erma Greer.

AMENDMENTS TO BE VOTED ON THIS FALL

COUNTY OFFICES TO BE FOR TERMS OF FOUR YEARS—GOVERNOR TO APPOINT MILITARY OFFICERS.

Florida voters will be required to vote on three changes in the constitution of the state at the general election, to be held on the first Tuesday in November, which will be November 3rd.

The three amendments bear materially upon the election of all county officers, commissioned officers of the state militia and the powers of the state judiciary.

The terms of office of the county officers will be made uniform should the amendment pass the general election, and will allow four-year terms for all officers after the election of 1916. The governor will appoint all of the commissioned officers of the state militia, and their terms of office shall be continuous during the pleasure of the governor.

The new amendment relating to the judiciary specifically prescribes its compensation set by the state legislature and terms of office.

Following are copies of the three amendments passed by the last legislature, to be submitted to a vote at the coming general election:

County Officers.—

Committee substitutes for joint resolutions Nos. 34, 89 and 98:

A joint resolution proposing an amendment to section six (6) of article 8 of the constitution of the state of Florida, relating to county officers.

Be it resolved by the legislature of the state of Florida, that the following amendment to section six (6) of article 8 of the constitution of the state of Florida is hereby agreed to and shall be submitted to the electors of the state at a general election, to be held on the first Tuesday in November, A. D. 1914, for ratification or rejection:

Section 6. The legislature shall provide for the election, by qualified electors, in each county, of the following county officers: A clerk of the county court, a sheriff, constables, a county assessor of taxes, a tax collector, a superintendent of public instruction and a county surveyor. The term of office of all county officers shall be for four years, except that of county assessor of taxes and county tax collector, who shall be elected for two years, until at the general election to be held in the year A. D. 1916, when and after which they shall be elected for a term of four years. Their powers, duties and compensation shall be prescribed by law. The legislature shall provide by law for the care and custody of all county funds, and shall provide the method of reporting and paying out all such funds.

Provided, county treasurers elected in general election held in 1914 shall hold office for the term elected.

Military Officers.—

Committee substitute for house joint resolution No. 281—

Proposing an amendment to section 16 of article 5 of the constitution of the state of Florida, relating to the appointment of commissioned officers of the state militia:

Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Florida:

That the following amendment to section 16 of article 5 of the constitution of the state of Florida is hereby agreed to and shall be submitted to the electors of the state for adoption or rejection of the next general election hereafter; that is to say, that section 16 of article 5 shall be amended to read as follows:

Section 16. The governor shall appoint all commissioned officers of the state militia, including an adjutant general for the state, with rank of brigadier general, who shall be chief of staff. The duties and compensation of all of the officers so appointed shall be as fixed by law. The terms of office of all commissioned officers of the organized militia shall be continuous, during the pleasure of the governor, subject to such laws as may be enacted by the legislature providing for their retirement for age or other causes.

Judiciary Powers.—

Joint resolution No. 547.

Proposing an amendment to section 1 of article 5 of the constitution of the state of Florida, relating to the judiciary.

Be it resolved by the legislature of the state of Florida:

That the following amendment to section 1 of article 5 of the constitution is hereby agreed to and shall be proposed and submitted to the electors of the state for approval or rejection at the next general election hereafter, that is to say, said section 1 of said article shall be amended to read as follows:

Section 1. The judicial power of the state shall be vested in a supreme court, circuit courts, criminal court of record of Volusia county, criminal courts, justices of the peace and such other courts or commissions as the legislature may from time to time ordain and establish. The legislature may prescribe the compensation of the justices and judges of the several courts, but no court heretofore established, under the constitution and laws of Florida shall be hereby abolished.

Moses and the Commandments.

A simple cross marks the spot which investigators of Sinai have decided is the place where Moses read out to the children of Israel the laws of God. The mountain itself must stand for the monument. Rus Safah, the elevation on which the cross stands, is wild, barren and rocky. About three hundred yards from the base of the mountain there runs across the plain a low, semi-circular mound which forms a kind of natural theater; while farther distant, on either side of the plain, the slopes of the enclosing mountains would afford seats to an almost unlimited number of spectators. Not far off there is an extensive recess which was probably used as a camping ground. No spot on the whole peninsula is so well supplied with water and pasturage.—Strand Magazine.

Improving Submarines.

The day is approaching when sea-going submarines of high surface speed will accompany the main fleet on the high seas. Large vessels of this type, of 21 knots speed, have been designed for the United States navy. Great Britain is building, in the Nautilus, the largest submarine in existence, which is intended to be as seaworthy while on the surface as the latest type of destroyer. Its surface speed will be not less than 21 knots, and it will have a submerged speed of from 15 to 16 knots; it will carry six torpedo tubes, and the surface displacement will be about one thousand five hundred tons.

Duke of Northumberland.

Henry George Percy, seventh duke of Northumberland, is the largest landowner in England. His estates stretch almost from sea to sea, and he can ride 100 miles and not once leave his own domain. In appearance he is tall and thin, with reddish hair and flowing whiskers. To Americans it will be interesting to note that James Smithson, who bequeathed the sum of $500,000 to establish the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, was a great-uncle of the present duke of Northumberland.

Elephant Remembered Him.

When Henry Shaw revisited a circus to which he had belonged many years before, no one of the people connected with it recognized him, but the elephant started trumpeting as soon as he appeared, and showed every sign of glad recognition.

Life's Service and Joys.

Hail, social life! Into thy pleasing bounds I come to pay the common stock, my share of service, and, in glad return, to taste thy comforts, thy protected joys.—Thomson.

Weaker Than Water.

"Waiter, return this tea whence it came," said the sad-looking individual. "If I drank much of that I would get so that ordinary water would make me drunk."—Current Opinion.

Value of Money.

I consider him a wise man who does not overrate the value of money, nor thirst for it, nor found all his hopes on it. . . . Who makes a good and rightful use of it may be called its lord and owner.—Petrarch.

Preservative of Youth.

None of the nature studies requires much money or time. A cheap illustrated guidebook, an opera glass, and, if possible, some walks and talks with an expert, and you will learn almost immediately to identify a score or more of flowers, or birds, or constellations, or mushrooms, and you will have found a hobby on which you may ride away from Death. Try it, young men, lest you grow old. Try it, old men, before you grow tired. Escape into the open from these narrow indoor days and learn the way to where the wild folk dwell. In their land you will find the help of the hills, and hope wide as the world, and strength, and youth, and happiness. Try it.—Samuel Scoville, Jr., in Lippincott's Magazine.

Learn to Write Well.

First legibility; second, eightliness, should be the endeavor in handwriting and let the "character" and the "individuality" take care of themselves. If you wish to devise a signature hard to forge, that is another thing; but one's every-day handwriting should be plain and as good-looking as one can make it. The art of writing a neat, legible, well-punctuated, correctly expressed and spelled letter should belong to every high-school graduate, much more to every college graduate; and the thanks of the community are due to those who are testing and trying to improve our methods of education; but they must remember that the letter-style is properly more loose and conversational than any other, and therefore should not be criticized in just the same way.

Good Luck or Hard Work?

The question of failure or success is such a wide one that the majority of people merely touch on it and attribute their condition to luck. Do you know what successful men say about luck? They scoff at it, declaring that good luck is another name for hard work, which rarely fails to bring rewards. Evading one's responsibilities or passing over opportunities means a bad mess of life, no matter what name you tack to it. Want of forethought is something for which each person is responsible, and it keeps many a man providing property for his family and deprives good men of helpmates they expect to have in the women they marry.

The Unnamed Locality.

"And this," said the alleged old soldier, peering a long-suffering editor who was an old soldier, "is where Arabs were massed in front of us. Here"—pointing to another place on a dirty pocket-map—"is where our division was drawn up in sereba. We deployed in this direction, and our left wing was attacked by the enemy on this knoll. Just at this point I was wounded on the left shoulder, and a hundred yards farther on I got my right arm shattered by a piece of one of our own shells, and—" "But," interrupted the bored editor, "where did you get your brains blown out?"—London Tit-Bits.

A Curious Revival

By F. A. MITCHEL

One day a man of uncertain appearance, so far as age was concerned, called at a dwelling that is considered a landmark on the northern end of Manhattan Island and asked for the lady of the house. Mrs. Van Valkenburgh, the occupant, asked her daughter Edith to go down and see what he wanted. She did so, and the moment she looked at him she started. He was of medium height, very thin and of a leathery complexion. His eyes were deep set in his head and had a peculiar glitter, such as is seen in the eyes of one who has gone a long while without sleep. As to his age, he might have been twenty-five, and he might have been seventy-five.

"Pardon the intrusion," he said. "Many years ago I left this house, which was then my home, to attend lectures at a university in Germany. I have not been here since."

It seemed to Miss Van Valkenburgh that she listened to a Punch and Judy figure. Never had she heard or dreamed of such a voice. The vocal tubes seemed to be dry and stiff. The lady involuntarily cleared her throat, as if to liberate that of her visitor.

"Will you be seated?" she said.

"Thank you," replied the man, who was dressed like a gentleman of fashion of half a century ago. As he spoke he looked about him.

"You rent the house, do you not?" he said.

"Yes, but why do you infer that?"

"The furniture is changed, but some of the pictures that were hung on the walls hang there now. That"—pointing to a portrait—"is my father."

The picture referred to represented a man of sixty.

"Indeed!" said the lady, beginning to quake inwardly at being alone with this singular person.

"Yes; when I went abroad I bade him goodbye in this very room. We little thought that we should never meet again."

These last words were intended to be spoken in a sad tone. They sounded like a street organ playing "Annie Laurie," the pipes refusing to respond at the words "I'd lay me down and die," giving instead a series of croaks.

Miss Van Valkenburgh was glued to her chair in terror.

"It was my craze for science," he continued in tones something like those of a boy whose voice was changing—the first part a high squeak, the last a subterranean rumble. "That was a time when thinkers were beginning to wonder if life might not be preserved in a subconscious condition. The man with whom I studied, Dr. Schnickel-friedhelm—"

The last syllable of this extended name was cut off by a violent fit of coughing. It sounded to Miss Van Valkenburgh as if a cat had been caught in a leather pipe and was strangling. She did not know whether to cry for help or to take up a bellows that stood beside the fireplace and blow a passage through his windpipe. Before she could decide the paroxysm was over. The gentleman leaned back in his chair, holding his handkerchief to his mouth. There was every evidence of tears from the violent coughing except the tears. His eyes seemed as dry as his throat.

"I was speaking," he said presently, "of Professor Schnickel—"

"Yes, yes, I know whom you mean; don't try it again," interposed the listener.

"He was a wonderful man."

"He must have been," Miss Van Valkenburgh hastened to put in, dreading lest another mention of his name might bring about another paroxysm.

"Half a century before our wonder workers of the Institute For Original Research learned how to introduce the organs of one living being into another. Professor—"

"I know whom you mean."

"Succeeded in extracting life's potentialities from the human system, leaving life itself to resume the po—"

At the difficult word the visitor's vocal organs again showed signs of collapse.

"Potentialities," supplied the lady.

"Whenever a successful process of revival was applied."

There was a weird look in the man's eyes, the look of one about to tumble into a grave, that proved the limit of Miss Van Valkenburgh's endurance.

"Excuse me for one moment," she said and hurried out of the room.

She hunted for the butler to go and get the visitor out of the house before he collapsed, but the butler had gone out on an errand. She spent some time telephoning for assistance; but, not knowing just what she wanted, there was no result. Then she took a peep into the parlor to find it vacant. The visitor had gone.

The next morning in the loft of the stable the roachman discovered a leathery looking thing resembling an Egyptian mummy. On searching it a paper was found pinned on the vest under the coat, buttoned over it on which was written:

The body of Edward Warren Schermhorn. Decayed by Professor Carl Schnickel-friedhelm Dec. 10, 1881.

Fortunately for science, a worker in the Institute For Original Research got wind of the matter and succeeded in getting possession of the mummy. It is not yet known what disposition has been made of it.

Now, who revived Mr. Schermhorn, and how did he manage to get back to the time of his youth? That is the mystery of this story.

By figures obtained from the office of the collector of customs, the value of merchandise exported from all Florida ports during the year ending June 30 last, was approximately $42,172,079. The value of merchandise imported during the same period was $9,950,642.

Child Acts Surgeon's Role.

Sarah Shaffer, thirteen years old, of Los Angeles, Cal., developed into a little heroine when her five-year-old sister fell on the sidewalk while at play and shattered her elbow. Dr. Edward G. Wiley, chief police surgeon, explained patiently over the telephone how the splint should be put on, and Sarah made such a good job of it as to win the admiration of all who saw the tiny patient when she arrived at the receiving hospital with her little amateur nurse. The children's father is at the county hospital and their mother went to visit him. Maybelle fell and broke her arm. Sarah called up the receiving hospital, but owing to the distance was advised to call one of the district doctors. She could raise none, and again called the receiving hospital. Doctor Wiley told Sarah what to do to relieve the baby's pain, while the ambulance raced out to the Shaffer home, and Sarah obeyed instructions to the letter.

Probable Duration of Sun.

Adopting the well-known hypothesis of Helmholtz, which attributes the production of the heat emitted by the sun to its contraction, an idea can be formed of the sun's duration. If one gives to the sun a co-efficient of expansion intermediate between that of mercury and that of gas, one arrives at the conclusion that it has taken one million to three million years for the sun to contract to its present radius; in particular, it would have taken ten thousand years to contract from infinity to a radius twice its present radius. Finally, the sun will take 200,000,000 years to contract from its present radius to half that radius, and even then its temperature at the surface will be 3,000 degrees.—Scientific American.

Minister Was Puzzled.

At a marriage service performed some time ago in a little country church in Georgia, when the minister said in a solemn tone: "Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" Instead of the woman answering for herself, a gruff man's voice answered: "I will." The minister looked up very much perplexed and paused. He repeated the sentence, and again, he same gruff voice answered, "I will." Again the minister looked up surprised, not knowing what to make of it, when one of the groomsmen at the end of the row said: "She is deaf. I am answering for her." — Lippincott's Magazine.

Importance of Trifles.

After a mad chase the escaped lunatic was carried back to his ward and the affairs of the asylum were resumed as before. "Beats all," panted an attendant, "how the wheels of a large institution can be stopped by a loose nut."

Whole Class Guilty.

A school-teacher complained to the principal the other day that one of his big boys was flirting outrageously with the music teacher, who came in once a day. The principal spoke severely to the class and ended by saying that, out of consideration for the feelings of the culprit, he would not name him in public. At the close of the session, however, he was to come to the principal's office for an interview. "Yes, you guessed it. All the boys in the class showed up."

INTERESTING MOTOR CAMPING TOUR OVER

THE PLEASURES AND EXPERIENCES OF A FOUR-THOUSAND-MILE AUTOMOBILE TRIP AS A VACATION OUTING.

(From The Daytona Gazette-News)

The following is an outline from a diary kept by Dr. G. A. Klock of an automobile camping trip made recently by himself and H. F. Stewart, accompanied by the doctor's colored chauffeur, Ben Moultrie.

After going over again for the fortieth time all accessories from coffee pot to gasoline, we left Daytona at 7:00 p. m. for Jacksonville. It was a dark and windy night; the car worked well but the roads were terrible; sand, palmetto roots and holes kept our pace down so that we were fifteen miles out of Jacksonville at midnight. Here, stopping for our first camp, building a good campfire, we gathered about and laid to a feast of fried chicken, after which we rolled up in blankets and slept well on this pleasant hypnotic until 5:00 the next morning, when, aroused by hoards of mosquitoes we hastily washed our faces in a nearby brook and were in Jacksonville in one hour, eating breakfast in the Hotel Burbridge.

Taking the steamer for Charleston that afternoon at 2:00 o'clock we enjoyed a stormy night, all being seasick, and getting into dock at 9:00 o'clock Sunday morning. After finding out that the boat company did not return the 15 gallons of gasoline that they took out of our tank, we managed to fill up again and as the clock was striking the hour of 10:00 we left the city for Columbia, the capital of South Carolina, which was 147 miles away. When out four miles a rear tire blew out, and it was on with a new one, which delayed us 30 minutes. Passing through a rolling country, roads fair, cotton fields on all sides, we journeyed on through Orangeburg, a bustling cotton town, and as night came on were within 30 miles of Columbia. Pitching our tent we had supper of fried eggs, bacon, coffee, bread and butter, after which we entertained ourselves with songs until 10:00 o'clock. We slept well until 5:00 a. m. when breakfast was served on wooden plates and coffee in tin cups, having to use our canvas pall as a basin for bathing or take turns pouring water in each other's hands. It was a cold morning and very windy and after a chilly ride of 30 miles we reached Columbia. Only stopping long enough to get a banner of the city, we left for Camden, 35 miles away. Here taking the wrong road we were in sand—and more sand for 10 miles. By putting on chains we managed to pull through. Fords were plentiful, too, but it was pleasant at times, besides filling a boiling radiator with cold water we could bathe our hot faces and hands; also wade to our heart's content in the same brook. Mountains began to show up; the rolling lands gave place to hills, valleys and fords. After a hard four-hours we got into Camden, and out about 10 miles we ate lunch beside a gurgling brook at 2:10 p. m.

Resting an hour we were on again, heading for Charlotte, N. C., 113 miles away. The roads were rough but we made good time and camped 15 miles out of Charlotte, near an old cotton gin. We were still in South Carolina, but out early the next morning and reached the city about 9:00 o'clock. Here blown out tubes were replaced and tanks filled with gas and oil.

Leaving Charlotte at 10:30 our next point was Greensboro, N. C., 99 miles from Charlotte. Passing through the villages of Concord, Salisbury, Lexington and High Point we drove into Greensboro all O.K. at 5:00 in the afternoon. After eating we started out, passing out by the garage where we got tanks in both front and rear tires. Changing these we went out five miles and camped for the night in a fine place but rightfully named "Camp Freezeout," for it was very cold all night. We broke camp for the day's run at 7:00 in the morning, our goal being Lynchburg. A run of 123 miles from Charlotte via Danville, Chatham and Alta Vista. All went well until a large piece of iron, broken off of a road machine, struck our crank case, cracking it and losing most of our oil. Having a bar of soap we made a hasty patch by filling the crack with it. We were now in Old Virginia, having crossed the state line just out of Danville. Driving out about 10 miles we had lunch beside the road and on again for Lynchburg. We were now in a great tobacco country, houses on all sides for curing the plant ready for the market. Roads were very hilly and rough and we only made about 100 miles when the shades of night came on us. Out of Alta Vista, camping beside the Stanton river, proved to be one of the most pleasant of camping places. Fried rabbit formed our supper and after a game of cards we went to bed and did sleep justice, for none needed a sedative after a day's riding over rough roads in the hot sun. Leaving here 7:00 the next morning we made Lynchburg about 10:00 in the forenoon, and now we had the roughest part of our trip, Lynchburg to Charlottesville. It was fords, hills, stones and the like all the way. Our baggage, which was tied on our running boards on either side, got wet time after time as we passed through fords that natives told us were very shallow, but all went well and passing through the mountain towns of Amherst, Livingston, Covessville, North Garden and Red Hill we reached the beautiful city of Charlottesville, Va., with a population of 10,000. Here is located the University of Virginia, founded by Jefferson in 1825, the most renowned institution in the south.

Two miles out we camped for the night, clear and starlight, but were out early the next morning and off for Washington, 123 miles. Here we passed through a historical section, for cities such as Culpepper, Warrenton and Fairfax Courthouse were in times past scenes of desperate encounters between the Federal and Confederate armies. When out of Warrenton six miles we decided to stop for the night, as it looked like rain, but none came, and at 8:00 the next morning we were on again and rolled into Washington at 3:00 in the afternoon.

I can assure you that it was a pleasure to again see a bath and to clean up. Taking a guide we saw the city and after putting on a new rear spring were ready at 9:30 the next morning to strike out. Baltimore was made in two and a half hours. Over good roads and through a beautiful country, we kept on, crossing the Susquehanna river at 4:00 in the afternoon at the city of Havre De Grace, eating lunch in the little town of Wilmington, Del. Bright and early we broke camp, our destination being Jersey City. Passing through the cities of Philadelphia, Trenton, New Brunswick, Elizabeth and Newark we rolled up to the Grand Central station in the afternoon, tired, dusty and hungry. At 9:00 the next morning the Overland rolled on the ferryboat for New York at the Cortland street ferry, up Broadway, out Fifth avenue, Nicholsonson avenue and again Broadway, we were in Yonkers at noon. Halting only long enough to eat a lunch of bread and milk, we passed through the city of Tarrytown into Ossining. Here we were escorted through the state prison of Sing Sing, where 1,523 prisoners are confined, and on again as far as Fishkill, where we camped for the night. The next day brought us into Albany at noon, and into Herkimer at night, having passed through the cities of Schenectady, Amsterdam, Fonda, St. Johnsville and Little Falls. After spending a good night in Herkimer we left there at 8:00 in the morning for Carthage, via Middleville, Poland, Boonville and Lowville, reaching Carthage about 4:00 in the afternoon, 80 miles from Herkimer. Buying provisions for supper, we hastened on to the small village of Harrieville, which was 20 miles away. Halting to say hello to a few friends we went on out four miles and camped on the old farm of my father's.

The next morning we left bright and early for Gouverneur, getting then to Black Lake, where we ate our lunch. Then crossing the toll bridge we went to the St. Lawrence river near Morristown. Stopping an hour we spent the time wading and bathing in the clear, cold water, and starting again we headed for Watertown. The roads were good, excepting where we had to detour on account of the building of state roads. Passing through the villages of Hammond, Chippewa Bay, Redwood and Yreka we camped 15 miles out of Watertown in a beautiful spot, apple trees in full bloom on all sides. A nearby brook to furnish water made it an ideal spot. Leaving here in the morning about 7:00 o'clock we started up roads all macadam, going through Watertown, Adams, Adams Center and into Pierpont Manor, where we had breakfast. On again, reaching Syracuse in four hours, we kept on, passing through Auburn, Seneca Falls, Seneca and Canadigua. Well do I remember this spot. The road passed very close to the lake shore and down went a tire. It took us an hour to put in a blowout patch and a lacing boot on the outside before we were on again through Avon into Batavia at about 5:00 and Buffalo at 9:30, having made the record run of our trip, 224 miles, with only one tire trouble and over all macadam roads.

Stopping at the Hotel Monroe for the night we were up early Sunday morning, just two weeks from Charleston. We drove to Niagara Falls for the day; saw the sights and were back to Buffalo at 4:00 in the afternoon. We decided to take a boat trip, and putting the car on the boat had a very pleasant ride that night to Detroit, Mich., getting in at 9:00 the next morning. Filling with gas we again started out, but made a mistake and took the road leading to Pontiac, and when out 16 miles had to turn back and come into the city and go out Michigan avenue. This delayed us two hours, so that it was 12:40 before we reached the university town of Ann Arbor. We drove about the city for awhile to see the changes, if any, since I was a student there. We left at 3:00 for Jackson, 40 miles west. Roads were sandy but good time was made. Got into Jackson at 5:00 o'clock with a blown-out tire. Eating supper in a restaurant while a tire was being put on, we left for Battle Creek, another 40 miles away, and passed through the city about 9:00 o'clock in the evening. Having not many miles to our credit we determined to push on and at 12:00 o'clock were in sight of the lights of Kalamazoo. Here a hasty camp was pitched and finding some old railroad ties we made a good fire. It was so cold that for lack of comfort we broke camp at 5:00 the next morning and went into town for breakfast. It was a fine, clear day and roads getting better, we had for our goal the city of Chicago. All went well and we passed through the cities of Paw Paw, Niles, La Porte, Valparaiso and Hammond, getting into Chicago at 5:00 in the afternoon. Putting the car in a garage we located the Hotel Revolt and had a good night.

The next morning, having unloaded our camping outfit and washed the car, we left for Madison, Wis., via Evoston, Highland Park and Lake Geneva, but the clay roads were rough and every section a cross road, until a stranger knew not which to take, but nothing daunting we kept on, reaching Madison at midnight, believing in the old axiom, "Better late than never." Staying here one day, we went over the university grounds and buildings, due to the courtesy of A. W. McConnell, the superintendent, who spent a month in Daytona last winter. Taking in a ball game in the afternoon, Madison vs. Racine, and theater in the evening, we left the next morning in the rain for Chicago.

The roads were terribly muddy and slippery, but chains and good driving got us along very well. Going back by the way of Janesville, Rockford and Elgin. Just out of the last named town a tire was punctured and do our best could not get a patch to hold, and after taking a tire off and patching it five times, bought a new tube in Elgin. At 11:00 we were back again in the Windy City. We were up early and packing up again left the city at 10:00 for Indianapolis, via Lafayette, then to Louisville, Ky., a distance of 394 miles, dividing this into three days' driving we hurried on. At 8:00 that night we were 21 miles out of Lafayette and camped in a school yard. Roads were fairly good but heavy. Breaking camp early we were in Indianapolis at noon and passing right through made on to the village of Seymour that night. Eating breakfast in Seymour we were in Louisville at 12:00 o'clock. Buying a new casing for a rear tire we put it on and started over rough roads, heading for Mammoth Cave, Ky., 116 miles distant.

The roads were poor and very rough, being paved with cobble stones the size of a man's head, with no top dressing, being done during the Civil war by the Union army in order to make them passible in rainy weather. When out about 40 miles we stopped for the night near Bardestown. The next day brought us into Cave City at noon, a little country town 10 miles from the cave. After dinner, which we did not hurry much, for the thermometer stood at 102 in the shade, we drove to the cave over a very rough and rocky road. We visited the cave, one of the best of nature's wonderful works, and leaving at 5:00 o'clock drove back to Cave City and out about six miles, camping on the farm of Mr. White by the side of a beautiful spring. Pressing on in the morning at 4:00 o'clock we were within three miles of Nashville when down went a tire and front spring. This was in front of the National cemetery where 15,122 soldiers are resting in peace.

Having changed a tube we drove into Nashville and found a garage where the spring was replaced and the carbon burned out of the cylinders. We left the city at 8:00 that night, heading for Chattanooga, distant 143 miles. It being a very dark night we got lost and only made 20 miles and camped in a cedar grove. The next morning we drove into Murfreesboro at 8:00 o'clock. Lots of hills and rough road, but all went well into Manchester, Tenn., where, on account of another bad rear tire, we waited a half-day for a tire to be shipped from Nashville. Night came but the train brought no tire, so patching up the old one we went on but trouble was plentiful. Again lost our way and had to pitch our tent until day. Getting a farmer to figure out a way to get us back onto the main pike, we started, passing the mountain towns of Hillsboro and Pelham and found ourselves at the foot of Montecagle, a part of the Cumberland mountains. Here an old farmer sent us up an old road almost impassable, the mountain rains having gullied the rock road, and words cannot describe this terrible road, steep, rough and stoney, with curves so sharp that one could hardly turn them. Some of the time going backwards for 50 or 60 feet before the brakes would hold it. Made one's hair stand on his head, as he looked down, one side a precipice and the other a rocky ditch, making at times only a few feet. After two hours we managed to make three miles up without the help of Mr. Farmer, who expected to earn ten dollars by our getting stuck. Here we took off our last old tire and drove into Tracy City on a rim. Phoning back to Manchester to have the tire sent on to Tracy City we sat down and waited another half day. Getting it that night at 8:40 we put it on and left town at 9:00 for Chattanooga. I almost forgot to mention the delight that we had in eating soup in this town, for as Mr. Stewart poetically said, it was "Soup for dinner, and soup for tea, soup as hot, as hot could be." Twenty miles rolled off and then "one dollar please" to get down the mountain, but this was well worth the price. It was very steep but well graded; our brake band burned and we had to put the car in reverse gear and let the clutch drag in order to hold the car. Passing through Sequatchie and Jasper and near to Rankin's Ferry, where we camped for the night. The next morning we crossed the Tennessee river and here again just missed a serious accident, for a steep grade stalled the engine as we were leaving the boat and the burned brake bands not holding we barely hit the ferry as we went backward. Starting again we went into Chattanooga without any mishap at about 9:00 o'clock. After getting breakfast we took the trolley up Lookout Mountain and spent our time sightseeing until 2:00 in the afternoon when we left for Atlanta, another 143 miles. Our way lay through Chickamauga Park, which is covered with monuments, marking the positions of the different regiments during this terrible battle of the civil war; also tablets stating who commanded and the number engaged. Spending some time in reading these, we went on, passing through Lafayette and going over Taylor's Ridge via Trion, which people told us was a better route, and camping that night just outside of Rome, Ga., at which place we ate breakfast, having covered 75 miles of the 143.

This being Sunday morning we did not hurry and after a good meal kept a good pace through Cartersville, Acworth, Kenesaw and Marietta. The tire trouble again started. It was a hot day and the cementless patches would not stay on, and after trying to get along by repeated patching we phoned in and had a tube sent out to us from Atlanta. One came in an hour and putting it on drove into the city with flying colors at 1:00 o'clock, going directly to the Hotel Arogon. We left Atlanta at noon Monday and when out 15 miles were caught in a thunder storm, the worst that I had ever experienced. Rain, wind and hail were terrific for 30 minutes, and we were by this time as wet as water could make us, but on we went, though only a short way, for a piece of gear was broken off in the differential and we turned back and drove into Atlanta, going to a garage. Got this piece out after eating supper and left again. All went well until another storm, but this time the curtains being on, it was dry as could be. Our clothes having dried very nicely during the afternoon. The rain beating so hard on the top, and watching the slippery clay roads, we could not hear the knock of a dry engine until it refused to go. It was now after midnight and we sat right there by the roadside in the pouring rain the rest of the night. In the morning the sun came up and spreading out all our wet baggage on the fence to dry I drove into Griffin and worked five hours on a bearing that had started to melt. Returned to camp and after eating dinner we packed up and left for Macon. We drove at night until 10:00 o'clock and then struck camp but were out early the next morning, in Macon by noon and Valdosta at about 2:00 o'clock, only halting there to inquire the road, we made the 24 miles into Madison, Fla., in an hour and a half, and after getting cold drinks pressed on toward Live Oak, a distance of 25 miles. Roads were heavy sand and when two miles out of Live Oak another terrific storm. The sand roads became beds of quicksand and sinking down in this we could not move a foot. Waiting until the rain ceased we dug out the wheels and pulled out all right and drove into town at 8:00 o'clock, tired and wet, having covered 177 miles over bad roads without sleep the night before. Leaving Live Oak at 7:00 in the morning we reached Jacksonville at 2:00 in the afternoon. After a two-hours' stop we left for St. Augustine and home, but having three or four punctures to fix in the dark it was 4:00 in the morning before the Overland rolled into Daytona.

Regarding the trip in general the roads had been fair pretty much all of the way; our speedometer had registered 3,900 miles; we had passed through 15 states; used six new tires, four of which were on the car; had been gone 34 days, and had met with no serious accidents, and the spirit and enjoyment of the trip is shown in the fact that all of the participants stand ready to go again.

London Criticizes New York.
The little differences between life in London and New York are by no means all to the credit of the latter. Our letter post crosses London in a couple of hours; theirs often takes a couple of days to cross New York. In London the goods you purchase in the morning may be sent home before the evening; in New York you are lucky if they arrive next day. The parcel post, too, is quite a new thing in America. Add to this such facts as the absence of "boots" in the hotels—the guests having to resort to the street-corner "shiners"—and the display of dust bins, even in fashionable streets, long after midday, and it will be seen that the "smart" and "slow" of which the American is so fond when comparing himself with us are not always to be applied as he applies them.—London Chronicle.

Mrs. Mosquito a Peril.
Declaring the female mosquito is deadlier than the male, the University of Wisconsin issued recently a statement on how to fight the summer pest. The male, said the bulletin, feeds on the juices of fruits and plants, but the female "gorges herself with blood that her eggs may have abundant nourishment." In water the eggs become "wrigglers," and these must come to the surface to breathe. If oil is poured on the water it suffocates the "wrigglers," thus destroying the new crop of mosquitoes. An ounce of oil will cover 15 square feet.

Therein is the Difference.
A highbrow can retire to his study and emerge with the announcement that he has discovered a subconscious cosmos, and we call it new thought. But a lowbrow can spend five years exploring an unknown continent and claim to have discovered a new animal called the snigglebluk and we are unanimous that it is old bunk.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Daily Thought.
He that bestows a gift should forget it; he that receives one should ever hold it in remembrance.—Solon.

Speed Up!
The World's Not
Fast Enough.

By MOSE.

THE world
SPINS
It takes YOU
with it.
If you sit perfectly STILL all your life you may enjoy the delightful sensation of this world joy riding.

However, if you put on a LITTLE SPEED of your own you'll go just so much faster and have lots more fun besides.

One way you can speed up is in really giving a little of your valuable time to the ADS. in THIS PAPER.

Lots of WIDE AWAKE folks here are SAVING MONEY by going where they are INVITED and are TREATED RIGHT, with good service, square prices and proper quality.

Of course, dear friend, you can toss the paper away with a muttered "Boosh!" if you want to. Then you can keep on sitting still. The world will move right on, and maybe you'll enjoy it just as much. But, believe us, plenty of OTHERS are SPEEDING BY YOU.

SPED UP!

ORMOND

ORMOND, July 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Coley Geiger and family left on Sunday for Macon, Ga., where they will be gone some time. Mr. Geiger will finish his course in pharmacy while in that city. In the meantime G. H. Henderson of Fort Pierce, Fla., will attend to Mr. Geiger's drug and prescription business.

Mr. and Mrs. David MacGlashan are taking steps to legally adopt Mary Margaret, the attractive five-months-old baby whom they took from the Children's Home society, Jacksonville, when she was but five weeks old.

The little dance held at the Yacht club on Friday evening was much enjoyed by the young people and gave a very good opportunity for those taking part therein to practice up on the new dances. The affair will be repeated this week.

Burglars entered the Israel Putnam bungalow on the Peninsula either last Saturday night or Sunday. David MacGlashan, who has charge of the residence, went over to look through the place on Sunday afternoon, taking with him Charles Totman, and found a door slightly ajar and rugs, clocks, furniture, etc., both outside of the bungalow and inside, packed ready to be carried away. Steps are being taken to locate the guilty parties.

Mrs. Macon Thornton, since her second operation, has been steadily improving, and expects to be able to leave the hospital where she now is in Nashville, going to the home of her sister, Mrs. Allan Campbell. Spring Hill, Tenn., and will also visit other friends and relatives in that vicinity.

Dan Waldron left Sunday for Asheville, N. C., where he expects to look into the matter of taking a position with his brother-in-law in the cement business.

We are glad to be able to state that James Carnell is still improving, and it is hoped will soon be able to be brought home.

Nature's Vivid Coloring.
The grandest phenomenon of nature is the glorious purple and crimson that sometimes spreads over the sky after sunset. Beginning with a splash of salmon hue, the evening purple spreads into the higher regions of the sky and covers the whole heavens with a curtain of deep red, full of mystery. In the mountains one is astonished to see this rose or violet color produce no shadow but bathe the entire landscape.

SHE WAS A PEACH

By SETH MONROE.

"Anthony? You mean Jim Anthony who used to cover this territory for King & Co.? Why, he has another route now, and he ain't traveling for King & Co. any more, neither. And Letty—you remember Letty, who used to be in service here. Well—say, I'd best start right at the beginning.

"Letty was the housemaid at this hotel when Anthony was King & Co.'s best salesman. Her mother had brought her up very strict, and when she died Letty was only eighteen and knew about as much of the world as a child does. The house was worth about two thousand, for property had been going up for a long time; but Letty couldn't live on nothing while it was on the market, so she came to the 'tavern' as second housemaid. In those days service of that kind wasn't considered any ways lowering in Wakefield.

"Anthony was staying over night. It was a small town on his route, and he hadn't made many sales that year, and he was naturally a bit depressed. But when he saw Letty sweeping down the hall he brightened up a bit. Anthony always liked a pretty face. So he comes up to her.

"Hello, kid, you sure are a peach," he says, and kisses her. That done, he goes into his room, thinking no more about it.

"Letty was flabbergasted. She had always been taught that to kiss a girl meant you wanted to marry her, and here was a perfect stranger who had kissed her the minute he set eyes on her. The little fool put down her broom and began to cry with happiness. Anthony was about forty and rather fat and flashily dressed, but he was all gold in Letty's eyes.

"Next morning Anthony, having renewed his grouch, went out of his room carrying his suit case. He met Letty, who had been waiting on the stairs. 'Morning, miss,' said Anthony, and passed on, leaving Letty still more flabbergasted.

"I guess she cried all that day, but when night came she had made up her mind. Of course a fine gentleman like Anthony wouldn't want to marry a girl in service. Her little head was full of romances. She had read about men being true to death, and all that, and she made up her mind to make herself worthy of Anthony.

"She took her savings and went to night school with them. By the end of the year Letty was a fair stenographer and bookkeeper, and, as the young woman who kept books for the 'tavern' was leaving to get married, Letty stepped into her shoes. The salary was a dollar less than her wages had been when she held the broom, but she was mighty glad.

"At the end of the year Anthony comes on his route again, and when Letty looked up from her books and saw him standing, waiting to register, her heart beat so that she couldn't speak.

"Anthony looked at her, and his grouch began to clear away. He always liked pretty girls.

"You sure are a peach, kiddo," he said, and chuckled her under the chin. 'How about the movies tonight?'

"With that he was gone, leaving poor Letty in a heaven of ecstasy. Her god had noticed her again; he was going to take her out. That flashy chap was a king in Letty's eyes.

"I guess Anthony wanted to take her out all right, though he hadn't the slightest notion that he had ever met her before. But he fell in with some of the boys, and they got him into a poker game, and when he got out, at midnight, he was $72 in the hole. And by that time he had forgotten all about Letty, who had been waiting all primed up since eight o'clock.

"Letty cried herself to sleep, and next morning Anthony was gone before she was down in the office.

"She gave up hope then, but she stayed on at the 'tavern,' keeping the books. She wouldn't have anything to do with the young fellows of Wakefield, but she was always nice to traveling men. About the time when Anthony was due again she began to ask timid questions about him. But nobody told her much; you see, they guessed something had happened between them. But at last Letty got the truth from a young salesman who was making the rounds.

"Anthony?" he asked. "Why, he won't be here any more. I'm covering his territory now for King & Co. You see, they caught him with the goods, miss."

"Goods?" inquired Letty, puzzled.

"Yes. Two thousand dollars he had taken to gamble with. His case comes up for trial pretty soon, and he'll likely get about four years as a first offender. Poor old Anthony! When he comes out he'll have hard work getting on his feet again."

"Next day Letty accepted two thousand dollars for her house, which had gone up to a good deal more than that in value, resigned her position, and started for New York. She went to King & Co.

"I want to see Mr. King on important business," she said.

"The clerk took her in and Mr. King stared at her, and she stared back at him. There was something tragical about Letty in little things. People didn't like the way she looked into their minds.

"Mr. King was growing uncomfortable when Letty burst out: 'If I pay you will you let him out, Mr. King?'

"I beg your pardon. Whom are you talking about?" asked the head of the firm.

"Mr. Anthony, sir," said Letty, depositing her two thousand dollars upon the table, and Mr. King stared harder than ever.

"Who are you?" he asked, eyeing first her and then the money. "You ain't his wife, because he wasn't married last time I heard."

"I'm going to be," said Letty quietly.

"Well, King was glad enough to drop the proceedings, and he took Letty round to the jail to see him. Anthony didn't feel too good to see King, but when he learned that he was to be free he saw the point.

"You can thank this young woman instead of me," says Mr. King. 'And let me tell you I wouldn't have taken her money if it hadn't been for the fact that she was engaged to you. In my opinion she is a good deal too good for you.' With which he turned on his heel, leaving Letty and Anthony looking at each other. To the best of his knowledge Anthony had never seen her before in all his life. He thought it was a game put up by some of his friends.

"Whose money was it, my dear?" he asked.

"Mine," answered Letty proudly. "I know you don't care for me any more, but when I heard you were in trouble it seemed—seemed only right for me to—gulp—give you my money."

"But you told Mr. King you were going to be married to me," said Anthony in bewilderment.

"I wouldn't marry you for all the wealth of Wakefield," Letty flashed out, and meant it, too. Somehow that word Wakefield recalled to Anthony the broken engagement, and then he understood and remembered her. His hand shot out and grasped her under the chin.

"Kid," he said, "you certainly are a peach."

"Yes, sir, they have been married nearly three years now, and he travels for Constable. Letty is as proud as a queen of Anthony. I guess there is the right woman for the right man everywhere, but, Lord, what luck Anthony had finding her!"

RICH IN HISTORIC INTEREST

Excellent Reasons Why Mississippi's Old Capitol Should Be Preserved by People of State.

A bill for renovating Mississippi's old statehouse calls for the legislature of the state to consider a question more or less continuously discussed by Mississippians ever since the completion of the present capitol in 1903. For a comparatively modest sum the old capitol may be restored and put to excellent and appropriate use. (So that today the sentimental plea for the building's preservation is strongly reinforced by utilitarian arguments.

Mississippi's old statehouse should be as dear to Mississippians who take pride in their state's history as the Cabildo is to Louisianians. Built in 1839 the old capitol at Jackson is identified with the most stirring events in the most stirring period of Mississippi's history.

In 1849 it housed the convention that formally asserted the principle of secession as a state right. In its hall the convention of 1861 was assembled and the ordinance of secession passed. During the stormy years just following the war it witnessed the dispossession of two governors by federal troops, and staged the notorious "black and tan" convention. It was the scene of the impeachment trial of Governor Ames. In 1890 it sheltered the constitutional convention which framed and enacted the franchise plan that solved the south's most portentous problem. Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay, Prentiss, Lamar, Walthall, George and other makers of history have addressed Mississippi audiences in the historic structure. It witnessed the election of Jefferson Davis as major general of Mississippi troops at the beginning of the struggle between the states. From its rostrum the Confederate president in 1864 delivered his farewell address to the people of Mississippi.

Housewife's Problem.
At the opening of the Woman's Industrial exposition in New York, City Chamberlain Henry Bruere said that getting food to the family is the great problem. The market will not do it, he says. In order to find out what is the right way, he says they sent around the world. They found the German housewives still go to market, but New York women cannot.

ICE

LET'S ALL KEEP COOL!

Hot Days like these are supposed to mean ragged nerves-tension-snapping all around.

But this is not necessarily true.

We can all keep cool-if we try.

It is the job of this Ice Man of yours to supply you with physical coolness in the form of pure ice, but you have to make your own mental coolness. You can do this by being sure that your taking of ice covers all your daily needs with some to spare.

Then you will always have ice for unseen emergencies, and you will not fret if the wagon happens to be a little late.

This is a simple receipt for peace of mind. Many of our customers are using it today with satisfactory results. If you haven't tried it yet, do so at once.

Ed Roach and family returned this week from Ohio and will spend the remainder of the summer at their beach cottage.

The shelter at the beach, built by the Civic league, is now completed and ready to accommodate the weary visitors. You are welcome to walk in and take a rest.

H. M. Getty and family of DeLand returned to their home last Friday after a pleasant week's outing with Mr Getty's brother, S. M. Getty. They report a very enjoyable time, and regretted to have the time come for them to return inland.

There was an unusually large crowd over bathing and enjoying the surf last Thursday afternoon. We are glad to see our playground getting so popular, and our citizens are thoroughly determined to keep the good work moving ahead.

We understand the entertainment at the new pavilion for the benefit of the New Smyrna firemen has been postponed until next Thursday afternoon and evening, because of the lack of time to make the proper arrangements for it.

One of our pioneer fishermen, Capt Chas. Slaver of Columbus, Ohio, arrived here last Monday for the remainder of the season and is stopping at the Coronado house. He is now to be seen daily with his rod and line at the old stands along the river and the beach. The captain says he had to come to Florida to get cooled off, and, as he is a man of experience, we are led to believe every word of what he says.

We are glad to see the Sanford Herald raising a row with us. Volusia county people about a good road from that section to Coronado beach. Perhaps our county officials will soon awake from their slumbers if this demand from our neighbors is kept up. It is only a question of time until this road will be opened, so why not get busy now and begin to enjoy the comforts and prosperity that naturally follow such important improvements? We think this broad hint from the Sanford Herald last week should stir our county commissioners to shake hands across the St Johns river and give us a good bridge.

Reasons Why You Should Buy Your Groceries from Us

BECAUSE we have bargains at all times-not special sales for a few days-but genuine money savers when you consider both quality and price.

BECAUSE we make a specialty of delivering when promised. We know our customers appreciate this service.

W. P. SHRYOCK

What Shall I Have for Dinner?

This is a pertinent question of the housewife or the one that does the marketing.

It is the season of the year with us here in this vicinity when fresh vegetables and other things which we usually have in abundance to help make up our daily meals are scarce.

We will have coming soon from other markets Cabbage, Beans, Tomatoes, Celery, Squash, Turnips and other good things to eat, and in the interim let us suggest we have a splendid line of things good to eat, put up by skillful hands, in a most sanitary manner, and at prices that put them in reach of everybody:

Canned Asparagus, Succotash, Corn, Peas, String Beans, Greens, Lima Beans, Beets, Spinach, Sweet Potatoes, Etc.

Come in and look over the stock.

A nice line of Canned Fruits, such as Peaches, Pears, Plums, Apples, Pineapples, Etc. All of these and a great number of other goods that are wholesome and cheap.

Our large and assorted stock makes it easy for you to get up a meal and our low cash prices brings the cost to minimum.

Come to our store and it will be our pleasure and your profit to supply you with a meal fit for a prince, and at a cost commensurate with the purse of a poor man.

COLORED MAN IS KILLED AT CAMP NEAR INDIAN SPRINGS

CORONER'S JURY DECIDES THAT NEGRO ACTED IN SELF DEFENSE AND WAS JUSTIFIED IN THE KILLING.

As the result of an alleged argument over a chicken some time ago, Kelley DuBoise, colored, was shot and instantly killed by another negro named James Lawrence at the turpentine camp five miles north of Indian Springs Friday afternoon.

The killing was done with a shotgun, the charge of small shot, fired at close range, taking effect in the abdomen of the victim and tearing a large hole in his anatomy.

In the absence of County Judge McCrory from the state, Justice of the Peace W. H. Newell of this city was called to hold an inquest over the body of the negro and the inquest was held at the camp late Friday evening. The justice took several men from this city to serve on the coroner's jury and the party was met at the camp by Sheriff Smith, who came over from DeLand.

The jury was composed of W. P. Wilkinson, L. R. Pillard, F. A. Newell and J. J. Birch of this city and W. B. Day and Geo. McCaskill. A number of witnesses were examined at the inquest and the verdict of the jury was justifiable homicide.

It was stated that DuBoise, who was killed, was carrying a double-barreled shotgun at the time of the killing, having previously stated that he was going rabbit hunting. Lawrence carried a single-barreled gun loaded with small shot. He declared that DuBoise was in the act of raising his gun to fire, when Lawrence fired. An examination of the loads in the gun carried by DuBoise showed that the shells were loaded with buckshot.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPES IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT AT ROSE BAY

H. C. F. Dohm of Daytona is in a hospital in that city badly bruised and shaken up as a result of an automobile accident at Rose bay Wednesday night. Seven other members of the automobile party miraculously escaped serious injuries. The automobile was a big seven passenger car from the Manning garage in Seabreeze and the party had been to New Smyrna and was on the return trip to Daytona. In attempting to make the quick turn onto the bridge at Rose bay, the car went over the bank and turned a complete somersault, landing right side up. The party is said to have been made up of four men and four women, all of whom were thrown into the water and some of the women are said to have been nearly drowned before being rescued.

The union Sunday night service next Sunday night will be held in the First Methodist church, South, and the sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Smith Hardin, presiding elder of this district.

KEY WEST PREPARING FOR BIG CELEBRATION.

The city of Key West has arranged a gala week celebration July 27 to August 1, inclusive, and the program includes field sports, motor boat races, baseball games, balls, luncheons, etc.

The Cuban government has been requested to send one of its cruisers to Key West, bringing the noted Cuban national band. The secretary of the United States navy has been asked to send one or more ships to Key West for the week.

Key West will be in gala attire during the period, and everything will be done to favorably impress the visitor.

The Florida East Coast railway has named a rate of one fare for the round trip from all stations on account of this occasion, tickets to be valid for train No. 85 Sunday, July 26, Monday, July 27, and Tuesday, July 28, arriving in Key West the following morning. Tickets will be limited to reach original starting point, returning, prior to midnight of August 2, 1914, and all tickets will be good for stop-over in either direction within the limit.

This is a splendid opportunity not only to attend the celebration at Key West, but to inspect the wonders of the Over-Sea railroad, and it is probably the only special reduced fare that will be in effect during the present summer.

DAYTONA BEACH.

DAYTONA BEACH, July 21.—Rev. H. H. Bowen, pastor in charge of the Daytona Beach Methodist church, will preach at the M. E. church at New Smyrna Sunday morning. Rev. J. H. Abraham will fill the appointment at the Seabreeze avenue church.

The Leisure Hour club met with Mrs. C. H. Wilson on Seabreeze avenue last Thursday afternoon. The study hour was devoted to the conclusion of the book of Job, after which the club enjoyed a short musical program given on the violins and mandolins by Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and Miss Ruth Coates, preceding the social hour. The next meeting, Thursday afternoon, July 29th, will be held at the Geneva at Seabreeze, Mrs. Frank Stenke, hostess, at which time a miscellaneous program will be given.

The foundation of the handsome winter home of S. J. Peabody was started last week on Halifax avenue, adjoining south of the new winter home of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Treglow, and is being erected by Architect and Contractor S. H. Gove, at an estimated cost of between $12,000 and $15,000. The residence will consist of an ample basement with first and second story and attic rooms. The foundation, which is of coquina rock, is being laid under the direction of C. A. Ballough. The outside walls will be of stucco with tile roof. Mr. Peabody has sojourned at the Clarendon several seasons, but was guest at the Seaside Inn last winter.

A deal has just closed between H. A. Horn and C. A. Ballough, in which the former sold to the latter two lots in the Hernandez grant on the river front at Holly Hill. It is understood that Mr. Ballough bought the old Burgoyne boathouse, which he will remodel into a cottage or residence.

C. L. Horn has purchased of Mrs. Charlotte E. Olliver a lot on the corner of Ocean avenue and Lennox avenue, the new street which is being shelled in South Daytona Beach.

Miss Marguerite Reed left Tuesday morning for Atlanta, Ga., in company with her brother, C. Reed, who has been here on a visit with his father and family for a few days, and will continue his journey to his home town, Gainesville, Ga.

Mrs. W. H. Freeman and two boys, Willie and Earl, left Sunday morning for Franklin, N. C., where Mr. Freeman will probably join them later. Mrs. Freeman and children spent the day in Jacksonville with relatives.

The remains of Mrs. Lena Rogers were brought back from Jacksonville on the 1:40 night train Sunday morning. Funeral services were held by Rev. H. H. Bowen at the church at 9 o'clock a. m. and interment was made at Pinewood cemetery. Mrs. Rogers was sister of Mrs. W. V. Wagoner, with whom she had been making her home on Palmetto avenue, Seabreeze. She went up to Jacksonville for an operation in one of the hospitals, from which she unfortunately failed to rally.

Mrs. J. N. Pickett will entertain on Thursday afternoon at 3:00 at a thimble party at her home on Orange street.

Frank N. Johnson and two sons and their families will move to Lake Helen this week, where Mr. Johnson, Sr., has the contract to put up a large hotel building.

Mrs. C. L. Horn, who has been spending a couple of weeks at DeLand, visiting her sister, Mrs. Richards and friends, returned home Sunday and rejoined Mr. Horn who came home a week ahead of her.

Miss Pickett accompanied Attorney Horn on a trip to DeLand in his car Saturday. This was Miss Pickett's first view of the classical old town and she was very favorably impressed with its handsome college buildings and beautiful shade trees.

Mr. and Mrs. Warner of Winter Haven, friends of Miss Blakeslee, came over from the interior this week and have taken rooms with Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Nicholson on Coates street.

Dr. S. C. Morgan of Meigs, Ga., rejoined his family at the Palm last Saturday on a two-weeks' vacation.

J. F. Kemp of Camilla, Ga., is at the Palm for a short stay.

Mrs. Tillie Brown of Evansville, Ind., arrived last Wednesday to spend the remainder of the summer at the White house, guest of Mrs. J. G. Hampell, the proprietor.

Z. Spinks of Oveida, manufacturer of cypress shingles, is guest at the White house this week.

George P. Johnson on last Thursday morning received a telegram from Gainesville, Ga., stating that his brother, Col. Fletcher M. Johnson, had received severe injuries in an automobile accident that morning, but at the time was comfortable at a hospital. On Sunday afternoon a second telegram came announcing the death of his brother at 3:45 that afternoon, and that the funeral would take place Tuesday morning at 10:00 o'clock from the home of the deceased. The injuries which occasioned Colonel Johnson's death were caused by an automobile running over him as he alighted from a street car. His leg was broken and he received internal injuries, but at first it was not thought that the accident would end fatally. Mr. Johnson was a prominent attorney and well known over his state. He received the nomination for the state senate at the last primary.

Mrs. Horton, senior and junior, came over from Winter Garden by automobile with Mr. and Mrs. Warren and are located with them in the Nicholson house on Coates street.

John C. Meyers, who came down from Missouri with Mr. Hampell, was called home on business and left on Monday on his return to St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Tibson of St. Augustine, Miss Kennedy and Mr. J. Walker Hilliard of Palatka, formed a pleasant party at the Seaside Inn for a stay of several days.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Floyd, Mrs. Harvey Clark and child of Ocala are at the Inn for a week or two.

Judge W. S. Bullock and wife and daughter, Miss Alice Bullock of Ocala were week-end guests at the Breakers.

Mrs. E. W. Barnhill, E. D. Barnhill of DeLand, C. D. Cannon, W. H. Peaks and E. W. Robinson of Orlando spent Sunday on the beach, guests at the Breakers.

Miss Gertrude Hutchinson of DeLand and friend, Miss Kathleen Searing of Jacksonville were transient guests at the Breakers the first of the week.

D. L. Monroe, a large celery grower of Sanford, spent several days at the Breakers the week past.

Mrs. L. R. Chazel and two small children, Misses Ornle Chazel and Hester Dewey, and Chas. F. Hazel, all of East Palatka, formed a congenial party at the Inn for a week or ten days.

Messrs. W. H. Flint, W. J. Dodge, J. P. Chambers of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Geo. W. Gibbs, Jr., of Jacksonville, were guests at the Inn last week.

Chas. E. Rowton of Palatka, who spent part of last week at the Inn, will return later with his family to spend the remainder of the season.

Roy Chittenden and Joe Chittenden, Samuel Yountz, Brader Williams, O. P. Herndon, Mrs. D. Tremaine, S. A. Tremaine and F. W. Wickham, a Sanford big bunch, were Sunday guests at the Breakers.

C. W. Sams of New Smyrna spent the week-end at the Inn. Mr. Sams was calling on friends in the burg.

The following motor party from Ocala dined at the Breakers Sunday: Mrs. B. Beschlor, Mrs. N. Beschlor, Miss M. Roek, Mr. McFallman, all of Ocala, and Miss Ehrman of New York city.

Mrs. C. G. Miller, Mrs. C. P. Swift and little Miss Mary Davis motored over from Lakeland to spend some time at the Inn. Mrs. Miller is visiting Mrs. Munn of Lakeland.

Must Have Been.

Says Mr. Filson Young in the Palm Mail Gazette: "I began yesterday by swimming in a sunlit sea, continued it by motoring through a hundred miles of lilac and gorse, and ended it listening to the most perfect concert program at Queen's hall that I have ever heard. . . . Was it not a happy day?" The answer, Filson, is in the affirmative, Mr. Punch remarks.

Spoiled the Effect.

"What's the matter?" a colleague asked of the advertising manager. "Matter enough. The fools have placed Mme. Soprano's testimonial for a cold cure on the same page with the announcement that she had a sore throat and couldn't sing."—Topeka Journal.

The Making of a Man.

No university can make a man. . . . Men may load themselves with lore till they stoop beneath the weight of their accumulations, and yet fail to lift a care from the heart of the weary, or impel a single soul an inch on its way to God. The real building of a man is within.—Dr. Clifford.

Discoverers of Illuminating Gas.

It was in 1792 that a Britisher, one Mr. Murdoch, made the first successful experiments on the illuminating properties of gases. Six years later he erected a gas apparatus in Birmingham. In 1802 Monsieur Le Bon illuminated Paris by this new discovery.

Gum Arabic and Plaster of Paris.

Into a thick solution of gum arabic stir plaster of paris until the mixture assumes the consistency of cream. Apply with a brush to the broken edges of china and join together. In three days the article cannot be broken in the same place. The whiteness of the cement adds to its value.

British Columbia's Timber.

With the exception of Siberia, Brazil and the northwestern United States, British Columbia's timber wealth is reported to be unparalleled in any other country.

SEABREEZE.

SEABREEZE, July 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Haigh and family, including Mrs. Haigh's mother, Mrs. Williams, Sr., and Miss Roda Butler of North Peninsula drive, left Wednesday for Asheville, Biltmore and other points in the North Carolina mountains. They will be gone until September.

Mrs. Fred Gordon and son, Arthur, of Enterprise, regular summer visitors, will come over to the coast the first of August to spend a month on the beach with Miss Kelly. Mr. Gordon will not be with them this season on account of business north.

The town council is hard after mosquito-breeding places and if the citizens will only co-operate with the sanitation committee as they should there will be a marked abatement of this nuisance soon.

Misses Branchhold, who have been attending the summer normal at Gainesville, are spending a few days in Jacksonville, but are expected home Saturday.

John Dorsett is spending his time pleasantly at the Russell farm, looking after Major Russell in the absence of his sister, Mrs. Mary Baker.

Miss Searing of Jacksonville came over from DeLand last week and is visiting Miss Ott at her home on North Halifax avenue.

News comes to friends here that Oscar Benson, who is at Marietta, Ga., his summer home, has been quite ill, but is slowly recovering from a malignant type of malaria fever. Mr. Benson and family have a winter home on North Halifax avenue.

Mrs. Harranden and Mrs. Blake of Lake Helen will spend a few weeks at the Morrison cottage next month.

J. F. Wilcox and wife, who have been at the Raymond for a couple of weeks or more, leased rooms in the Branch apartment house on Coates street and are now in possession.

Mrs. J. P. Mendel and four children of Palm Beach are spending the month with Mrs. Mendel's mother, Mrs. D. W. McDonald, and other members of the family at their home on North Halifax avenue. Mr. Mendel spent a few days with the family the first of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Norris Keely and children of Tampa are located for a month in the Tusculum cottage on North Atlantic avenue. Mrs. Keely is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. McDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Flaherty of St. Augustine arrived the middle of the week to spend two or three days with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Kenney at their home on North Halifax avenue.

The Thursday and Saturday evening dances at the new Nautilus casino, North Seabreeze, are well attended. Good music by the Crystal orchestra, a cool hall and a beautiful dance floor are pleasant combinations not to be resisted by the young society set.

Miss Adella Ruth Towne, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Towne, entertained eleven of her boy and girl friends Saturday evening at her home on North Halifax avenue. Kenneth Brokaw and Edith Beers of Daytona, and Ada McDonald of Seabreeze, were the prize winners in a game of "see what you can see" on a penny. There were other games, new and old, and the young people had a fine time. At the close of the contests ice cream and cake and candies were served.

Mrs. M. V. Hart, who was not well enough to attend the funeral of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Fortson, when summoned, went down to Bowling Green the day after the funeral to comfort her grandchildren, Mrs. Upson accompanying her. They spent a couple of days with Mr. Fortson and the children and returned home Thursday. Mr. Fortson, who is station agent at Bowling Green, will take his vacation soon. Adeline and Laura will accompany him as far as Seabreeze to spend the time of his absence with their grandparents.

Mrs. A. E. Allen is spending the month at her home on North Halifax avenue, in the meantime she has all her children at home with her. Wallace Griggs is here on a vacation from the Palatka bank. Mrs. Frank Browning and her two babies of East Palatka are also with her mother, and Miss Stella Browning, her sister-in-law, is over for a few days' stay.

W. L. McClarty returned last Wednesday from several weeks' visit with his relatives in Douglasville, Ga. His youngest son, Harold, accompanied him. Mr. McClarty says when it comes to fried chicken and water-melon old Georgia is not to be passed. They returned home much benefited but somewhat spoiled by the outing.

Sra M. V. Young, president of the San Souci club, writing to friends at Daytona Beach, stated that the summer heat at Frankfort, Ind., had been almost unbearable, and that she and the doctor were planning to spend their next summer on the northern lakes.

Dr. H. W. Cox, professor of philosophy and education in the State university at Gainesville, will occupy Professor Wakefield's residence on Oakridge avenue for the month of August. Dr. Cox will bring his wife and their two small children with him.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Stewart, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. D. Fluhart of Daytona, motored over to DeLand for a day's outing Monday. They made the trip in Mr. Stewart's car.

The street committee, Geo. W. Buckner, chairman, are resurfacing North Atlantic avenue with shell. There are several very bad places on North Peninsula drive which needs attention.

Very interesting morning bridge parties are being enjoyed at the Seaside Inn and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Stewart on Earl and Ocean streets.

Charles Reed of Bartow autosed across country and was a guest at the Neptune Monday.

Herbert Spencer and mother were spend-the-day guests at the Neptune Thursday.

J. A. Spruill of Gainesville, brother-in-law of Mrs. Fred Richards, spent last week at the Neptune.

W. E. Simmons, accompanied by Mrs. J. A. Clark and Miss Clark, drove the latter's car over from Oveida for a few days' visit with his mother and sister at the Hibbard cottage. Miss Clark spent part of her stay with Miss Jones at the Painter cottage. They returned home Sunday afternoon.

J. B. Jones and Chas. McCulley returned Wednesday to Oveida after a visit of a couple of weeks on the beach with Mr. Jones' family. Miss Stella Farnell, who was also visiting Mrs. Jones and family, accompanied them back home.

W. J. Waddell, who is spending the month with his family at the Whitsett beach cottage, made a quick trip across country from his home at Winter Park one day last week. He covered the distance, 80 miles, in three and a half hours, arriving here in time to enjoy an eight o'clock breakfast with his family. Mr. Waddell brought back with him some very delicious fruit from his orange grove, which he generously shared with some of his friends.

E. W. Clement on Saturday joined his family at the Wakefield cottage. Mr. Clement, who is on the beach for his health, took the cottage for a month, but has improved so rapidly since he came over that he expects to remain longer.

J. R. Martin and family, Miss Sara Pearl and W. N. Martin and Mrs. Martin, Sr., and his neices, Miss Eugenia and Annie Benton Fuller motored over from Ocala on Thursday in Mr. Martin's handsome Packard, and are guests at the Gray Gables for several weeks.

Mrs. Stilling and son-in-law, Chas. Nushbaum, spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Edgar Dunn and family at Seabreeze beach.

Mrs. G. W. Kingston and house party are occupying the Stewart cottage for a week or ten days. Mrs. Kingston has with her Mrs. Bonner and Misses Winnie and May Kingston and the Misses Peacock of DeLand.

A house party of 15 or more from DeLand have made room reservations at the Neptune for the latter part of this month.

An interesting bridal party, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Lohmeyer of Newport, Ky., and friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hatch of Leesburg, whom they were visiting, motored over and were guests at the Neptune from Tuesday until Friday.

D. E. Austin and family, H. J. Schultz and family, and G. Ringdoff and wife, a motoring party from Jensen, spent part of the week at the Neptune.

Death of Miss Fields.

Miss Gertrude Fields, aged 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Fields of DeLand, died at a beach cottage at 8:00 o'clock Monday night. Miss Fields, who was brought over to the beach as a last hope, was the victim of a severe attack of typhoid fever, from which she had not the vitality to rally. The remains were sent to the undertaking parlors at Daytona, and were shipped Tuesday afternoon, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Fields to Lexington, Ky., their old home for interment. Besides her parents Miss Fields leaves a younger sister, Miss Madie Fields.

Prof. Davis to Teach at Miami.

Prof. D. D. Davis, principal for two years of the Seabreeze high school, has been elected to the principalship of the Miami Central grammar school. This is quite a promotion for a young man, and Mr. Davis is receiving the congratulations of his many friends on his promotion. Mr. Davis has many warm friends in Seabreeze and Daytona Beach who will watch his successful career with interest. Mr. Davis and family will leave the latter part of September for Miami to get settled before school opens September 28th. In speaking of his work Mr. Davis is very much pleased over the handsome school building and the interest in school matters taken by the Miami citizens.

Peninsula Residents in California.—A very interesting letter received from Mrs. Daisy Dryer last week gives a vivid account of a pleasant social affair where old Floridian friends met in pleasant reunion. The letter says: "Last Friday, July 11th, Rev. Grant Stewart and wife entertained at luncheon in honor of their Florida friends, complimentary to Mrs. Julia Stewart. Those present were: The host and hostess, Mrs. Julia Stewart, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Emma Caldwell, Mrs. Florence Johnson and the writer. Dr. J. W. Kramer and wife brought the party home in their auto at about 5:00 o'clock." The letter further goes on to state that the Stewarts live in a beautiful bungalow parsonage in West Alhambra, and in their Maxwell car enjoy outdoor life. Rev. Mr. Kramer is Mrs. Dryer's brother. Mrs. Dryer speaks most enthusiastically of the country with its mountains and valleys, its flowers and fruits and sunshine and snow. Her friends here will be very glad to know that she is recovering her health on the grand old Pacific slope.

PORT ORANGE.

PORT ORANGE, July 21.—"That success is too dear which is attained by any sacrifice of truth, honor or justice."

Mrs. Mary C. Karn has returned to her home.

W. R. Bull is home again, much better, and was able to walk up to the postoffice.

Mrs. J. J. Vinzant returned home to DeLand by the automobile route Monday afternoon, after a very pleasant stay of some weeks at the Tribbell house.

Miss Bray and her friend, Miss Gutteridge, came over the last of the week to stay some time with the latter's parents in the Vass cottage.

Elmo Dupont spent Sunday with his parents. Elmo is very popular in this "berg." He is holding down the position of freight agent at Hastings and reports a very busy season in that energetic, thriving community.

I. J. Wells has his new cottage on Orange street nearly roofed.

Vincent Savage and wife are visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. T. M. Bangs. They were formerly residents of this place, and are now living west of West Jupiter, where they are engaged in growing citrus fruits. Mrs. Savage has very poor health.

D. T. Mozler is spending a couple of weeks at Daytona Beach.

Some motorcycle riders go through town without regard to state laws, or town ordinances, going at a high rate of speed, and paying no attention to crossings, nor giving warning of their approach. In case of accident it would go badly with these riders. Better go more slowly boys, or you may have the pleasure of a trip to the county seat.

Miss Caroline McDonald on Tuesday last suffered a paralytic stroke that affected her left side. On Thursday she was removed to Dr. Klock's sanitarium. At this writing she is slowly improving. Fortunately her speech was but slightly affected. "Aunt Caroline" is a daughter of the late E. A. McDonald, the pioneer of Port Orange. She enjoys the esteem of her large number of relatives, and as well of the entire community; that she has seen grow from her father's "lone log cabin in the woods" to its present proportions. Many gratefully remember her self-sacrifice in administering to those in need, none of whom were turned empty away. Should the best wishes of this community prevail Miss Caroline will speedily recover.

The rains, though light in this immediate vicinity are giving freshness and beauty to vegetation. Orange trees are putting on a vigorous growth, that was due in June, but "better late than never" is true in this case. But few sweet potatoes have as yet been planted. If planted soon, however, and with a favorable season from now on, there is time to make a good crop.

The regular meeting of the council was held on the 7th inst. Routine business was disposed of. The marshal was instructed to make a tour of sanitary inspection within certain limits and report at next meeting. After discussion of some matters of general interest council adjourned to meet on the 28th inst.

Mrs. W. L. McDonald is not improving as rapidly as her many friends would wish, and is still at Dr. Klock's sanitarium.

Warren Morgan has rented Geo. McDonald's house on Dun Lawton avenue, next door to Martin's ice cream and confectionery store, and is moving in at this writing.

Use Magazine Stories.

An invalid or aged person who enjoys magazine articles sometimes finds the magazines, with their bulk of advertising, hard to handle. If the magazines are taken apart by removing the little wire clips that bind the sections together, the stories or articles can be easily handled separately. And any article specially likely to be enjoyed by a friend at a distance can be sent by mail when separated in this way.

ALLANDALE.

ALLANDALE July 20.—A carload of shingles, 70,000 arrived last week for C. Christianity and have been placed on the lots where buildings are to go up.

The foundations for the Hutchingson, Childs, Hobbs and Brock bungalows are ready for the sills and frames.

The coquina wall in front of the Christianity lot is about finished and it is about the prettiest piece of rock work to be seen anywhere and has been commented on by a number of passers-by in tuxos.

The Christianity bungalow has been framed and the roof will go on this week. This will be the most imposing house so far to go up in Allandale being 70-foot front and 50-foot deep.

Miss M. Brock has planned for two bungalows on the corner of Ridgewood and Clark place, and two more will be built on the corner opposite and a large house on the two lots on the north of Miss Brooks. This will make five houses at this point.

Ridgewood avenue through Norwood and Allandale was well patrolled on Sunday by autos and teams so much that summer travel fortell what can be looked for when the winter season opens.

The black walnut library table that H. T. McClellan made for Mrs. Christianity was sent down on Saturday and it is one handsome piece of furniture, both as to the wood as well as workmanship. The matching of the top is perfect, being almost impossible to see the joints. Too much cannot be said about the fine work turned out by the constructor.

Kate, the Allandale alligator, is enjoying life in her new home in the rear of the Inn. She's real sassy and objects to being looked at.

We have had some fine rains during the past week that has done so much good. The fruit on the orange trees are as large as they were in October last year.

C. Christianity left on Monday for a trip north, going to Charleston, S. C., and Baltimore, Md., and will be gone till the end of the week.

Mrs. Walter G. Sparkman is still visiting her mother, Mrs. Howe. She finds Allandale very much improved since she was here last and thinks the change has been all for the good.

Gladstone's Domestic Rule.

Mr. Gladstone once said that he had solved the domestic problem in this way: "Whenever Mrs. Gladstone insists I submit; and whenever I insist she submits." He didn't say, however, whether they took turns abiding and submitting. Marriage is a failure when one of the parties insists on being the insister and doesn't take turns in submitting to the submitter.
